BRIEF HISTORY OF THE "FOUR WEEKS' WAR."

October 8—Montenegro declares war against Turkey.

October 12—Montenegrins invest Tarabash.

October 14—Montenegrins take Tusi.

October 17—Serbia and Greece declare war against Turkey; Turkey declares war against Bulgaria and Serbia.

October 19—Bulgarians capture Mustapha Pasha, near Adrianople.

October 22—Servians take Prishtina on way to Uskup; Turks retire to Koumanovo.

October 24—Bulgarians capture Kirk-Kiliseh, key to Adrianople.

October 25—Servians capture Koumanovo, outpost of Uskup.

October 26—Servians capture Uskup; Montenegrins capture Scutari.

Oct. 27—Bulgarians capture Baba Eski, southeast of Adrianople.

October 30—Bulgarians capture Lule-Burgas and Muradi, commanding Rodosto.

November 2—Turkey asks powers to mediate.

November 4—Fighting continues before Constantinople.

London, Nov. 4.—The Turkish ambassador here has been directed by the Ottoman government to inform Great Britain of Turkey's willingness to receive assistance in bringing about a suspension of hostilities with a view of arriving at a peace settlement.

Tewfik Pasha immediately on receiving the communication from Constantinople went to the foreign office and conferred with Sir Edward Grey, the British minister for two hours.

AT GATES OF THE CAPITAL

Sofia, Nov. 4.—Although Turkey has appealed to the powers to mediate and bring about a suspension of hostilities in the Balkan war, furious fighting was still going on today at most within the suburbs of Constantinople.

While the main division of the Turkish army has sought refuge beneath the forts of Chatalja, the main defenses on the north, fighting was still going on south of the Orient railway and on the western slopes of the Istranja mountains where Bulgarian forces drove Turkish troops before them. It was learned today that the Turkish army began retreat after 72 hours of fighting.

The first report of Bulgarian loss in this fight was given out here today. This stated that 4000 Bulgarians were killed and 20,000 wounded.

The brunt of the battle was borne by the first and second regiments of Bulgarian infantry. Out of the 7200 troops only 700 escaped unscathed. Six thousand, five hundred soldiers of the first and second regiments fell upon the field either dead or wounded.

The flight of the Turkish army is compared with Napoleon's retreat from Moscow. Whole brigades of the flower of the Turkish army were annihilated. The Bulgarian artillery thundered its destructive fire without cessation night and day for 48 hours.

Belief is expressed that after bringing Turkey to her knees, Bulgaria and the other Balkan states will refuse to listen to offers for mediation until Constantinople has been invested.

I. E. Guechoff, the Bulgarian premier, has dispatched important aides to Czar Ferdinand who is at the army headquarters at Stara Zagora, which it is believed relates to the mediation.

Mr. Guechoff declared today that in his opinion the powers would not press their demands for a cessation of hostilities at once.

London, Nov. 4.—Turkey's note asking the powers to mediate in her behalf with the Balkan states and with Greece was the subject of formal discussion at a special meeting of the cabinet in the foreign office today.

THINK BEFORE YOU VOTE TOMORROW And Don't Fail to Vote AGAINST TRUSTS

Sir Gerard Augustus Lowther, the British ambassador to Turkey has cabled from Constantinople that the Turkish government is desirous of the greatest urgency on the part of the powers.

This is a vital admission by Turkey that she has been overwhelmingly crushed in the Balkan war.

FOUND BODY OF WOMAN IN THE BATHTUB

New York, Nov. 4.—A woman's body, nude, with bruises on the hips was found in a half sitting position in a bath tub in a Harlem apartment house late last night. It was identified as that of Miss Alla Vanauken, a stenographer. A man who was supposed by neighbors to be Miss Vanauken's father is missing.

ALL CLAIM NEW JERSEY

Newark, N. J., Nov. 4.—Except for the two addresses to be delivered at Passaic and Patterson this evening by Governor Woodrow Wilson, the campaign in this state is practically at an end. The fourteen electoral votes of New Jersey, Gov. Wilson's home state, are claimed by all three parties. The president of the Senate will become Governor in case Mr. Wilson is called to lay down his office.

ASHBROOK WILL WIN.

(Coshocton Times)

It is always a matter of satisfaction to be able to refer in terms of praise to the achievements of men entrusted with public interests and affairs of state. But in this connection it would be difficult, indeed to frame words of praise that will fittingly express the approval of the people of this district of the career in congress of our present representative, Hon. Wm. A. Ashbrook.

It is not necessary to speak of Mr. Ashbrook as a candidate, merely for political effect. His re-election is already conceded by the largest plurality ever given a candidate in the 17th Congressional district. Before the campaign commenced his battle had been fought and won on the floor of the house, in his brilliant and effective efforts in behalf of the interests of his constituents.

One of the most popular members of either branch of congress, his magnetic personality and tireless energy which will not be denied, have made him so useful to his constituents that his continuance in the position he so worthily fills is assured.

This assurance is highly gratifying to his many friends throughout the district, and The Times joins most heartily in the wish of all that the result of the election next Tuesday, Nov. 5th. will be in the nature of an ovation—a spontaneous tribute to his honest merits as a faithful, trustworthy and efficient servant of the people.

Think before you vote tomorrow. You can't make any mistake if you simply put your X mark in the circle under the rooster.

The man who neglects to vote tomorrow should not afterwards complain about the result of the election.

PROSPERITY WILL CONTINUE SAY LEADING BANKERS

The Franklin National Bank of Philadelphia issued a digest of trade conditions on last Thursday in which it was pointed out that a period of business prosperity is assured the country regardless of who is elected President tomorrow. It is noted that this opinion is generally expressed in banking circles at all the great commercial centers and it proves the absurdity of the panic howl that has been raised on the eve of election by the Taft and Bull Moose leaders.

In the judgment of bankers and others who are especially interested in a continuance of existing prosperous conditions there is no basis for any such fear as that which is claimed by the political panic howlers. The Philadelphia bank's digest of October 31 contains this statement:

"Within a few days the votes will have been cast which will decide who is to occupy the President's chair for four years, beginning on March 4 next. While each one of us is vitally interested in the outcome and each has his favorite among the candidates, it is reasonably sure that business will continue in its present healthy condition, regardless of which of the three candidates is successful."

FEDERATION OF LABOR FOR WILSON AND COX

The Ohio Federation of Labor in its 1912 state convention supplied the reason why all union men should vote for Congressman James M. Cox, of Dayton, Democratic candidate for governor, when the delegates adopted a resolution endorsing him for the vacant services he rendered to the cause of workingmen when he went upon the platform and urged the adoption of the more progressive of the constitutional amendments.

The New York State Federation of Labor has recently supplied the reason why all Ohio union men should vote for Governor Wilson. It did so when it issued the following plea to the workingmen of New York state and of the United States:

"The federated labor party has looked into the political situation and finds that labor stands pat on the question of supporting the candidates whose records show that they have done something for the advancement of labor interests in the legislative assemblies."

"We find that Governor Wilson has done more than any other governor of the state of New Jersey in the way of practical support of labor legislation. He gave more consideration to labor measures than any other governor of the state, and did more for the enactment of labor laws than any other executive head of the state of New Jersey. He has given a practical demonstration of his friendliness for organized labor." This plea was issued on behalf of: Edward I. Hannah, president of the federated central body, representing the central federated union; Brooklyn central labor union, Essex county trades council, United Hebrew trades, trades and labor council of Patterson, Hudson county central labor union; John Kennedy, president of the brotherhood of butcher workmen of America; Thomas E. Lennon, president of the safety engineers' union; L. T. Meyland, president of the central federated union; John C. O'Brien, of the harnessmakers' union; William Gallagher, safety engineers; Alexander Kelso, Greater New York carpenters' council; Matthew A. McConville, safety engineers; E. W. Edwards, web pressmen's union; William H. Kelly, copper-smiths; J. C. O'Donnell, international brotherhood of steam shovellers and dredgemen; Thomas J. Curtis, president of tunnel and subway constructors' international union; M. A. Schmid, secretary of upholsterers; Joseph Healy, brotherhood of painters; Frank Farrell, business agent of the asphalt workers; Edward Bradley, business agent of the stone cutters; Michael Eastman, newspaper deliveries; Robert Grindell, dock builders.

Never were there better chances for a straight Democratic ticket by the Ohio union men.

NEWARK MAKES ROYAL GIFT TO EVANGELIST FOR SERVICES HERE

Citizens Make Free-Will Offering of $5243.76 on Final Day of Most Successful Revival Campaign

TOTAL OF 2687 CONVERTS HAS BEEN REGISTERED

"The Closed Door" as Theme of Dr. Lyon's Final Sermon Brings Record-Breaking Response to Call for Those Desiring to Accept Christ as Personal Lord and Saviour.

The Lyon revival campaign is over. For six weeks Dr. M. H. Lyon and his staff of Christian workers have labored with the sinners of Newark in what at first seemed a vain effort to bring them to repentance, to arouse in them a recognition of their great duties in life. Flagrant efforts to belittle their great work had no effect whatever on their earnestness, except to possibly increase their zeal and double their efforts. Firm in their faith in the ability of Jesus Christ to save Newark, they prayed for the victory, and in accordance with the promises of Jesus Christ to those who should enter into the kingdom, their prayers were answered, the victory was theirs. Surely Tennessee in his Idylls sensed the very basic principle of the religious revival when he said, "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."

The results of the campaign are most gratifying. There were many who prophesied during the early days of the campaign that there would not be a thousand converts during the entire six weeks. In fact, their auguries seemed to be valid for several days, but finally the need of a great, sweeping revival among the church people of the city was impressed upon the minds of the splendid audiences which greeted Dr. Lyon. The church members re-consecrated their lives to service and gave their definite support to the meetings in every possible way, men and women going out and pleading with the lost to accept the Christ, from whom they had until a few days before been drifting farther and farther away. The result—instead of the scant thousand of saved souls predicted, the registration lists in the hands of the ministers show a total of 2687 conversions, and it is estimated that a sufficient number accepted Christ during the meetings and were then compelled to leave the various meetings without leaving their names, to bring this total up to the 3000 mark.

Interest Now Aroused. But this is not all. The interest of the entire community has been substantially aroused in matters spiritual. Many who made no definite stand for the Christian life have been bettered by the godly counsel of the evangelist, and have made up their minds to cleanse their lives from the more flagrant violations of God's will. They have taken the first steps toward the Christian life, manifesting an interest in the things that are of God, and if given the proper moral support by those who are now professing Christians, they will perhaps be gathered into the fold of the Newark churches. The churches have been strongly unified by the coming of Dr. Lyon—practically the entire Protestant denominational bodies joining in the promotion of the work of the campaign. That this splendid co-operation will continue now seems assured, the leaders in the various neighborhood prayer meetings, which have comprised members of all denominations, planning at the present time for the continuation of the daily services throughout the winter. It is also

NEW SUPERINTENDENT OF NEWARK DIVISION B. & O.

FORMER RESIDENT HERE

With the resignation of Superintendent M. H. Cahill, of the Newark division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and the appointment of C. W. Gorsuch to succeed him, Newark will see the return to this city as superintendent a man who began his service with the Baltimore and Ohio as train dispatcher in the local office.

Mr. Gorsuch, assistant superintendent of the Pittsburgh division, who comes to Newark as the successor of Mr. Cahill, entered the service of the Baltimore and Ohio as train dispatcher, at Newark on July 15, 1898. On January 1, 1902, he was transferred to Pittsburg in the same capacity, being promoted to assistant train master of the Pittsburg division on the first day of the following year.

In May, 1907, Mr. Gorsuch was made chief clerk to the general superintendent at Pittsburg, and on July 11, 1911, was appointed chief clerk to the general superintendent of transportation at Baltimore. The position of assistant superintendent of the Pittsburgh division, which he held at the time of his promotion to Newark, has occupied him since Aug. 10, 1912.

PICKUP AUTO TAKEN FROM LOCAL GARAGE AND THIEF IS CAPTURED IN COLUMBUS

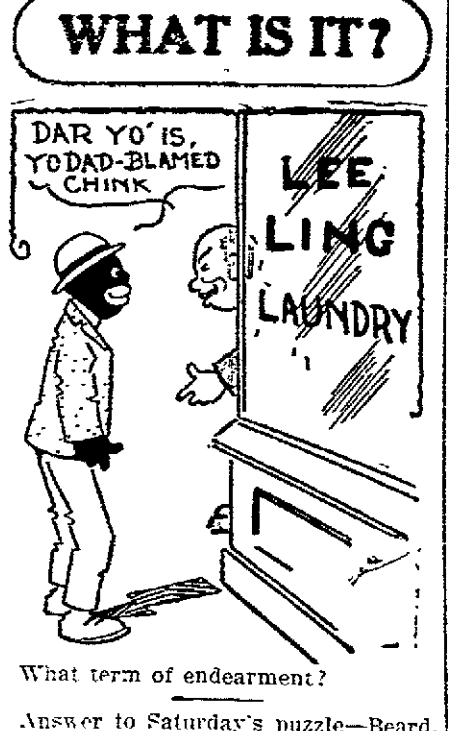

Frank Barnes, formerly employed at the Auditorium garage, was arrested at a State street lodging house in Columbus late Sunday night on a charge of stealing an automobile belonging to George C. Pickup, of the Wehrle Company. The machine was taken some time Saturday night, probably after midnight. It was not missed from its customary place in the garage until Mr. Pickup and a friend called Sunday morning to take the machine out. After the discovery of the loss of the machine, it was also discovered that Barnes, who has been working at the place, had disappeared during the night. He was one of the employees who sleep in rooms on the second floor.

The police investigation which followed revealed the fact that a woman from a Walnut street resort was also absent and all clues pointed to Columbus as the destination of the joy riders.

The Columbus police department was notified and they learned that a Newark couple had met with an accident near West Jefferson, where their car was abandoned. The marshal of the village found Mr. Pickup's car in a livery barn at that place.

Columbus detectives then started out to find the couple. At a West State street hotel, they found "Mr. and Mrs. Birch of New York" registered. The couple was placed under arrest and later they were identified as James Barnes and Ruby Reed.

scriptions to the fund came from the lowliest workers in the city's factories to the veritable kings of Newark's financial circles. The greater part of this was contributed during the morning service, when about $2500 was pledged. Those who were unable to honor their pledges yesterday are responding nobly to the request of the finance committee that everything be "cleared up" promptly, and are making their payments at the Newark Trust Company. This institution will also receive payments of pledges until Tuesday evening.

It would be difficult to give the names of all who have contributed to the offering, but the Advocate takes pleasure today in presenting the following list of the subscribers to the larger amounts. The largest subscriptions were those of O. C. Jones and family, $100; A. H. Helsey, $100; and the Chorus Choir, $86.34, the other pledges ranging in amounts from $50 to $1. Those who contributed $50 were Mrs. Norpell, E. H. Hull, W. C. Swisher and wife and Dr. Essington. Those giving $25 were: F. F. Swisher, Pine St. Sunday School, F. S. Van Vorhis, Marion R. Lumley, Wesley Montgomery, Charles W. Seward and wife, W. M. Fulton, W. F. Alwood, F. L. Beggs, Mrs. Ella Park, E. C. Joe, B. B. Jones and wife, L. C. Sparrow, Dr. Clark Hatch, C. H. Spencer, Sisterhood of the Central Church of Christ, T. M. Edmiston, Brotherhood of Central Church of Christ, W. H. Mazy, J. P. Shai and wife, Mrs. C. W. Seward, Ladies' Aid of Second Presbyterian church.

Those giving $15 were E. S. Hulsizer, Charles E. Huber, E. H. Watkins, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wallis, John B. Addick Jr., A. Friend, Geo. W. Buchanan and wife, J. R. Davies and B. H. Bailey.

The following $10 subscriptions were recorded: C. D. Paramour and wife, Harriet Bible Class of Plymouth Central church, Dr. C. L. W. Wyeth and wife, Silent Circle of King's Daughters, East Side W. C. T. U. Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Adams, J. C. Green, J. P. Irish and wife, J. C. Craig and wife (additional), A. Friend, George B. Sprague, George H. Long, S. L. James, Congressman William A. Came Without Promises.

The splendid collection was taken at all three services. Dr. Lyon not appearing on the platform during the entire opening service. He did not know the extent of the contributions until the close of the service last night and he expressed himself as indeed grateful to the good people of Newark who had so substantially shown their appreciation of his efforts. He came to Newark without the assurance of receiving even enough with which to pay the expenses of his associates. He had, however, an implicit confidence in the ability and willingness of his God to see him through any period of difficulty should one arise, and the manifestation of the attitude of the people of Newark was but another proof which tends to prove that the Lord is mindful of His own.

Dr. Lyon left, accompanied by Mrs. Lyon, on an early morning train over the B. & O. for their home in Wheaton, where the evangelist will rest for a week, preparing for the evening.

MANY SEE LYON OFF.

Fully a hundred persons saw Dr. Lyon "good-bye" at the Baltimore and Ohio station this morning, when, accompanied by Mrs. Lyon, the evangelist left for Chicago. Many business men took the opportunity of saying a word of personal appreciation to the blessings they have received during the past six weeks. Dr. Lyon delivered a brief "sermonette" in the waiting room just before the train pulled in, emphasizing the value of faith, service, fellowship and love in the development of Christian lives. Dr. Lyon will remain at his Wheaton (Ill.) home until Friday night and will return to Newark for a half day's visit next Saturday morning, en route to his campaign labors at Parkersburg, W. Va.

EVANGELIST BIDS FAREWELL TO NEWARK

To the People of Newark: I have been delightfully surprised at the reception that I and my assistants have received in Newark. From the idea that I had obtained of this city before coming here, I had thought that there would be great difficulty in awakening any deep interest in religious matters. We have found some of the choicest Christian people in Newark that it has ever been my privilege to meet.

But I feel that there has been in the past a weakness on the part of the better element of asserting their rights and grasping their opportunities. The greatest hindrance we have had to combat has been a lack of seriousness on the part of the community in general. There has been too much superficial thinking and thoughtless acting. Thoughtfulness is a prerequisite for godliness.

I have been much pleased with the spirit of unity evidenced among the churches.

In going from you, I especially urge that you conserve the interests of your boys and girls, your young men and young women. They are the greatest asset of your community.

Support in every way your public school system. Build a new library. Promote your Young Men's Christian Association. Establish a Young Women's Christian Association, and be satisfied with nothing else until every young man and young woman in this city is brought directly under the influence and nurture of practical, vital Christianity.

Let me urge every good citizen to select the best possible public officers, men who will countenance no violation of the law, and will stand for righteousness in high places. Don't be contented until every house of vice is driven out of your city and county, and every man, woman and child is brought under the saving influence of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

I will watch with the deepest interest the progress of your beautiful city, and will pray that you may be in the forefront in every good cause.

Let me express to the Advocate my personal appreciation of the good work you have done in the clear and complete stenographic reports of the meetings, and I am sure the gospel you have preached throughout your columns will find abundant fruitage in the coming months and years. I regard the work of your Mr. Morrison in reporting the meetings among the very best that it has ever been my privilege to have in my entire experience. Yours,

MILFORD H. LYON.

tory to the severe strain of his coming campaign in Parkersburg, W. Va., which is to open next Sunday. "Judge" Holloway and his wife will leave this afternoon for Parkersburg to see that "things get a-moving." While Fred Hazen, genial, jolly, smiling, and his charming little wife will leave in a few days for the same place, where they will undoubtedly be as prominently identified with the work of bringing souls to Christ as they were in the Newark campaign. Mrs. Powell and Mrs. Allison will enjoy a week's rest in Ohio cities before the opening of the West Virginia meetings. It is with extreme regret that it is learned that Mr. A. G. Fath, the capable pianist of the local campaign, will not have charge of that work at Parkersburg. Mr. Fath returned to his home in Cincinnati early this morning and will go from there to Chicago, where he will resume his studies in the Moody Bible Institute. His remarkable genius assures for him a career that is extremely brilliant in its promises, and his journey toward prosperity, both material and spiritual, will be watched with keen interest by his Newark friends. Mr. Fath declared that it was with great reluctance that he departed from Newark, especially following Prof. Mitchell's kindly explanations to the members of the choir that Mr. Fath, despite his worried appearance when manipulating the piano, is still in the ranks of bachelor-organ and leap year is not yet over. Incidentally, Prof. Mitchell is also going to rest for a week—that is, if that recent arrival in Trenton will permit him to sleep without the accompaniment of its lusty, inherited vocal powers.

Turned Many Away. The big tabernacle was completely filled long before the final service commenced last night, and the doorkeepers are authority for the statement that fully 2000 persons were turned away, unable to find seats in the building. The rear aisles were crowded throughout the service with men and women anxious to hear the final message of the evangelist, conservative estimates placing the attendance at nearly 6000. Every chair on the big platform was in use, while stairs leading to the platform from the side aisles were used as "reserved seats" by those fortunate enough to get to them before the ushers could prevent them.

The vast crowd was in splendid spirits last night, partially from the knowledge that Newark had not "fallen short" in its appreciation of Dr. Lyon's work, and partially from the recognition that in the final service, fully a hundred souls should find the Way of Life. Prof. Mitchell seemed to find especial delight in the direction of the music last night and worked with his audience until there were very few who were not at least making some attempt to "carry the word of life for Jesus." "Revive Us Again," "Throw Out the Life Line," "Tell It Wherever You Go," "Jesus," and many more received the enthusiastic applause of the audience and properly prepared the minds of the visitors for the solemn gospel message that was to be their portion later in the evening. The chorus choir, larger than at any other time in the services, sang "Someone's Last Call," one of the most majestic anthems in the "little red book," and a number which proved heartily harmonious with Dr. Lyon's theme.

REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD VOTE FOR BEN B. JONES TOMORROW

To the Voters of Licking County: Tomorrow you vote for three county commissioners to look after your interests for the next two years. In choosing these three commissioners you should select men of the greatest experience and with the best business records. No man should be elected to carry on the business of the county and to expend thousands of the taxpayers' money simply because he is a "good fellow."

Vote for the men who make a success of what they undertake. Vote for the men who have the real interests of the county at heart. Vote for the men who stand for Ministers Elect Officers.

The Ministers' Association held an important business session in the Y. M. C. A. this morning, electing a secretary-treasurer to fill the vacancy caused by the removal from the city of Rev. Mr. Holcomb. The ministers re-elected Rev. Mr. Laughlin of the East Main Street M. E. church to the presidency of the organization and Rev. Mr. Ward of the Central Church of Christ, to the vice presidency. Rev. Calvin Hazlett of the First Presbyterian church, was accorded the secretaryship by a unanimous vote.

The ministers decided to hold a union Thanksgiving service this year at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning, Nov. 25. The service will be held at the First M. E. church, and the sermon will be preached by Rev. J. Morrison Thomas, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church.

Another important feature of business transacted this morning was the partial distribution of the 2713 converts' cards signed during the Lyon campaign, among the pastors of the various churches toward which the signers expressed preference. Five cards signed by persons preferring the Central church and a large number from those who expressed their desire to affiliate with the Episcopal church, will be turned over to Father O'Connell and Rev. Mr. Franklin for their attention.

TWO JUDGES OF COMMON PLEAS TO BE ELECTED NOV. 5

To the Voters of Licking, Delaware and Knox Counties: As you doubtless know I have been nominated as candidate for Common Pleas Judge. The names of all candidates for judicial offices appear on a separate non-partisan ballot, and for this office there are four candidates.

For Which We Thank You! The evangelist also commended the various committees for their faithful work, and the ushers for the splendid manner in which they have avoided friction. "And then to the newspapers," he added, "and these two reporters, Mr. Scott and Mr. Morrison for their faithfulness and painstaking reports, that have been preaching the gospel of Christ all around this country—and also to the editors of the Advocate and American Tribune who have by this generous use of your columns shown your interest in this campaign. Trust friends, that this good work will go on, spreading the gospel of Jesus Christ not only from the pulpit, but also from the printed page, in the weeks and the months to come."

NEWARK HIGH DEFEATS EAST COLUMBUS

Amid flurries of snow and with a chill wind whistling across the gridiron Newark High school met the football aggregation from Columbus East high school on Wehrle Field Saturday afternoon and after a grueling battle sent Coach Gullum's pets home with the small end of a 15 to 7 score.

Overwhelmed many pounds to the man, outmanned by the soaring spirals of Captain Thurman, of East, and, in the second half deprived of the services of the brilliant half-back Hagar, who was banished by the referee when he retaliated upon Fuller, of East, for rough tactics, the Newark lads fought loggishly, tackled fiercely, and, taking advantage of East's slips, gained a safe margin in the first half and held it through the latter portion of the contest.

Early in the first quarter "Jimmie" Brown, receiving a well-shot forward pass from Captain Orr and scampered over East's line for the first score. Later, in the second quarter, Right tackle Neils scooped up a fumble and raced down the field for the second touchdown. Newark's other score came when Half-back Hager booted the ball over the crossbar with a pretty drop-kick from the 30-yard line.

East's score came in the second half when the Orange and Black rushed the ball up the field by terrific plunges of her heavy backs and Hamblin shut across the line. Thurman added a point by kicking goal.

East kicked off to Newark, the locals defending the south goal. Hagar made 10, J. Brown 15 and Orr was tackled with no gain. Newark fumbled and J. Brown recovered. Orr kicked out of bounds, and on the first down Thurman punted 49 yards. Hagar made 20, repeated for 8, J. Brown failed, but on the next play skinned the end for 15. On the next play, on a forward pass from Orr to J. Brown, Newark scored. Warner missed the goal.

Newark, 6; East, 0. East kicked off to Hagar, who returned 10 yards. In quick succession Hagar made 10, J. Brown 5, Orr 8 and C. Brown went in for J. Brown. Orr made first down, C. Brown lost, 10 when Hager retrieved. Hagar dropped a goal from the 30-yard line. Newark, 9; East, 0.

Newark kicked to Hamblin, who returned 10. Fuller bucked for 5 yards and the quarter ended with the ball in East's possession on Newark's 45-yard line.

At the beginning of the second quarter, Hamblin crossed for 5 and Harley was grounded with no gain. On the next play East fumbled, the ball rolling to one side. In a flash Neils annexed it and sprinted 85 yards over the line. Hagar missed the try at goal. Newark, 15; East, 0.

The remainder of the half was completed with the ball passing from one team to the other near midfield.

Early in the second half Hagar, whose stellar work had helped the locals over many yards was removed from the game for forcibly resisting the rough work of Fuller, and the locals were penalized half the distance to the goal line. Orr punted and the ball wavered back and forth between the teams, neither being able to retain it for any length of time. The quarter ended with the ball in Newark's possession on her 18-yard line.

In the last quarter Orr kicked to the 25-yard line, but soon took the oval on downs. Orr made 4 and Neils 8 and Orr kicked. Cook tackling the receiver in his tracks. A forward pass by East failed, but on the next trial Davis tipped off a splendid run. Orr brought him down on the 16-yard line. Fuller backed for 5 and on the next play Hamblin carried the ball over. Thurman punted out and kicked goal. Newark, 15; East, 7.

East kicked off to Warner and soon Orr punted out of bounds. The remaining minutes of the game passed with the ball in East's possession in Newark territory.

B.G. PLANS FOR W.C.T.U. CONFERENCE

With the Lyon revival now off its hands, the citizenry of Newark can turn its attention to the proposed creation of a Young Women's Christian Association in this city, and it is assured that the mass meeting in the High School Auditorium tonight for the discussion of "ways and means" will be well attended. Those interested in the movement will find in Miss Hughes, territorial secretary of the state organization, a speaker of charming personality, well adapted to give to the women of Newark the high ideals of the W. C. T. U. It is understood that some valuable matters will come up for consideration, and that substantial local citizens will be present to assure the movement of their hearty support. The meeting will start at 8 o'clock, prompt.

Jesse T. Rees for Recorder.

Jesse T. Rees, Republican candidate for county recorder, was born in Newark, O., July 30, 1877. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rees of 113 Chestnut street, his mother being an invalid. Mr. Rees is of Welsh descent. His grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. B. Rees, were among the first settlers of this city coming by steamboat. During the gold fever in the 40's Thos. B. Rees embarked to California by way of Panama and walked across the Isthmus. John Felix of Pearl street is one of the survivors of the trip. Jesse Rees is a straight-forward

THE HUMAN PROCESSION

By O. Terrence.

ADA SYDNEY, HEROINE OF SOUTH SEA ROMANCE IN AFRICA.

Born in Australia, spending her youth in the islands of the South Seas, residing some years in America, marrying a German official, and now a hostess in the heart of Africa—such is a brief outline of the adventurous life of Ada Sydney, now Frau Schne. It was eleven years ago today that Miss Sydney became the wife of Dr. Albert Herman Henry Schne, a scholarly and distinguished German who had aided in carrying the white man's burden in many parts of the world subject to the imperial rule of William the War Lord. Although the marriage ceremony was performed in ultra-civilized New York, it was the culmination of a romance that had its beginning in the South Sea isles, those lands of mystery and enchantment.

Sydney, Australia, was the birthplace of Ada Adelaide Sydney. She made many trips to various of the myriad isles that dot the South Pacific, and became the friend and interpreter of their quaint people. Perhaps no other woman, unless it be the creator of "Valki," Beatrice Grimshaw, knows so well the real life and habits of those distant islands. She became familiar with their languages and dialects, and translated into English many of their historic legends. Thus the folk-lore of the South Seas became available to the Occidental reader.

Dr. Schne felt in love with the books of Miss Sydney before he met the author. He was then engaged in looking after the interests of his imperial master in the South Seas. His official position as vice-governor of German Samoa gave him the opportunity, and his scholarly and scientific bent of mind the inclination, to delve into the history and lore of the peoples whom he governed. Miss Sydney's investigations along similar lines nat-

IT'S YOUR LIVER AND BOWELS, SURE

Some of the Symptoms That Point to Laxatives as the Remedy.

When the bowels become clogged and the liver doesn't act, the whole human system is thrown out of order. The circulation of the blood is directly affected by constipation, and where a case becomes chronic, pimples, sores, ulcers and blotches are the direct result. Sick headaches, pains in the back, foul breath, dired feeling and general breakdown are all caused by liver and bowel trouble.

There is just one remedy for this trouble. Take a few doses of Laxapods, the little lavender tablet that's sweet to take and contains the active qualities of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable taste and odor.

Take this ad to your druggist and insist on getting Laxapods. For sale in Newark by Evans' Drug Store.

HEALTH OF THE CHILD.

Do you eat breakfast every day? Do you drink coffee or tea? Do you have your bedroom window open or shut at night? Do you own a toothbrush?

These and other pertinent questions are being answered by the children in the public schools of Minnesota. They form part of a "Health Grading Outline," whereby teachers and school nurses may learn in the most direct manner possible the physical condition of the children entrusted to their care.

OFFICERS RAID THE KLONDIKE

Chief of Police Blizzard and Patrolman C. O. Burke raided the Klondike saloon, operated by Cley Craig in South Fourth street Sunday and arrested the proprietor on a charge of violating the saloon ordinances. He was placed in jail but later was released. Several witnesses found in the place were required to give their names to the police officers and they will be asked to testify in the case before the Mayor. The case was set for hearing Monday afternoon.

At Aden, Arabia, the water is pumped from the sea, condensed and sold at 73 cents for 100 gallons. All food is imported.

Seven electric motor trucks will be purchased by the Manila postoffice.

SYMPTOMS OF CONSUMPTION

Yield to Vinol. The medical profession does not believe that consumption is inherited, but a person may inherit a weakness or tendency to that disease.

A prominent citizen of Evansville, Ind., writes: "I was ill for five months with a pulmonary trouble, and had the best of doctors; I had hemorrhages and was in a very bad way. Through the advice of a friend, I tried Vinol, and I feel that it saved my life. It is all you recommend it to be. I believe it is the greatest medicine on earth. I have advised others to try Vinol, and they have had the same results." (Name furnished on request.)

Vinol soothes and heals the inflamed surfaces and allays the cough. Vinol creates an appetite, strengthens the digestive organs and gives the patient strength to throw off incipient pulmonary diseases.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. Frank D. Hall, druggist, Newark, O. P. S. For any skin trouble try our Saxo Salve. We guarantee it.

BURGLARS HAD A BUSY TIME SUNDAY NIGHT

Burglars worked overtime Sunday night, gaining entrance at three out of four places visited. All the jobs were done by the same man, he was well repaid for his night's work, securing about $30 in money, several watches and a pair of automobile tires. The four places where the burglar worked are: Simpson's garage, West Main street; F. F. Wallace's residence, 61 North Sixth street; Charles Flory's residence, Seventh and Church street; and the Newark Paint Company's store, Union Block and Arcade. Their efforts to enter the latter place failed, and it is presumed that they were interrupted in their work.

At the Simpson garage the jimmy was used on a window and a pair of automobile tires were stolen. Like the other places, no clew was left by the burglar.

At the Wallace residence, in Sixth street, a dining room window was forced and the thief got about $6 in money and two watches.

Nothing was taken from the paint store.

Burglars forced an entrance to the home of Charles Flory at Church and Seventh streets at an early hour Monday morning and before being frightened away, stole a silver chain purse belonging to Mrs. Flory and containing a sum of money.

Entrance was effected by using a "jimmy" on a window on the Seventh street side of the house. The burglar worked under the glare of two lights, one at Mount street and another at the Church street corner.

Mrs. Flory heard the noise of the breaking window latch and frightened the intruder away but not before he found the purse which was in the library drawer. Another purse and a bank belonging to the children, were overlooked by the burglar in his haste to get away. The matter was reported to the police but the burglar left no clew.

Mrs. Flory's name was engraved on the inside of the purse and she hopes to recover the property when the thief finds its value too small to make it readily marketable.

Last Friday night the home of J. P. Swartz, Union street shoe dealer, who lives in Pine street, was entered and a gold watch, two rings and a plush coat were stolen.

Patrolman Abbott investigated all these burglaries for the police department.

Twenty million pounds of butter were sent out of European Russia in the first six months of 1912. It was valued at $4,850,000.

you seemed to bring your friends with you. I don't take this credit to myself. I place the credit where it belongs. What other subjects can I speak on for 100 times, and have almost twice as many people at the close as he had at the beginning. That is not a tribute to the man, it's a tribute to the gospel message of Jesus Christ, the Son of God.

"As has been said before from this platform, the old Newark has passed away. The old things have become new. Citizens of Newark, stand for honesty and righteousness and the majesty of the law in all places, public and private. See that you have officers elected in your county and your state that stand first, last and all times for law enforcement. Don't be hide-bound by party affiliations. I speak not from the political standpoint, but speaking from the religious standpoint, choose the best men, men that love God, that believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, men that are Christian men, men that are clean men in their private and public life, and if any of you are strangers in the city, ask some of those who have been here longer who the men are that stand for righteousness and truth and for godliness.

"There is enough intellectual and political power in this building tonight, if it is consecrated to Jesus Christ and purity and godliness, to drive out the liquor saloons and drive out the red light district and drive out every other vice from Newark county and keep them driven and thrust out all eternity.

"Our eyes are going to be upon Newark. This is going to be a city set upon a hill, whose light and whose influence is going to radiate to every part and portion of this Ohio commonwealth. I pray God, friends, that if you have not taken a stand for Jesus Christ, that you will on this closing night of the campaign come out definitely and positively on the Lord's side. What will it mean? It will mean that you will go forth to have a family altar in your home. Let your children be taught to honor the name of God. Fathers, let them hear your voice reading God's word. We cannot all leave our children money, but we can leave them the memory of Christian parents. Husbands, make the homes of Newark Christian homes. Let your influence count definitely for Christ. Business men, more than your town needs railroads, it needs more of the gospel of Jesus Christ. More of you business men need to be consecrated to and aggressive in the cause of Jesus Christ.

Back the Y. W. C. A. "So, friends, I trust that you will stand for every institution that stands for the uplifting of this commonwealth, for your public schools, stand by your teachers, by your Board of Education, in making the schools of this city rank in the very forefront of this state. I trust that you will have new libraries when I come back to Newark. Stand by your Y. M. C. A. I trust that you will have a gospel meeting every week, that your young men may find it a central place for rallying, a place where they can be raised to a higher life, physically, mentally and spiritually. I also trust that you will patronize well the movement now started for the building of a Y. W. C. A. in Newark. I trust that you will soon have a building for promoting Christian work for the young women in your beautiful city, as well as among the young men."

Dr. Lyon then called on Prof. Mitchell and Mrs. Powell to render a duet. "Hear, Sinner, Hear: Believe and Live," at the close of which the evangelist established a new precedent in American evangelism, giving a gospel invitation before he commenced his sermon. "There are many of you here have made up your minds. You have had preaching enough and want to accept Jesus Christ. Won't you come down here and give me your hand and say, 'I will accept Christ as my personal Lord and Savior?' The effect was almost startling: absolutely without the intervention of Christian workers, fourteen men and women came forward to take a positive stand for the Christian life, and after a fervent petition for the bringing of hundreds of others to the recognition of this same great need, Dr. Lyon commenced his evening's discourse.

The Door Wash Shut. The theme for the evening was based upon the parable of the "Ten Virgins" (Matthew 25:1-14), with the final phrase of the tenth verse as the text, "And the door was shut."

"When our Lord Jesus was upon this earth he was constantly hampered by being compelled," said the evangelist by way of exposition, "to express infinite truths in finite language. Imagine yourself going down to the heart of Africa and trying to explain to the natives in the rude vocabulary of their tongue our great modern inventions, the wireless telegraph, the phonograph or the X-ray machine. So Jesus was endeavoring to present great spiritual lessons in the human language of the day, and there was no illustration he could use that would so clearly present to the minds of his hearers the greatness of salvation as to liken it to a wedding feast. Now if marriage is regarded as a great social event with us, it was much more so with those to whom Jesus spoke these words. With us the wedding festival is only a matter of a few hours, but with them it lasted days and almost weeks. It was the one great event in any life.

Desire, Then Decision. "We are told that there were ten special guests. In many ways these bridesmaids, these guests of honor were exactly alike. First of all, all of the ten undoubtedly desired to enter into that wedding feast. It has always seemed to me as an absurd expression to ask, 'How many desire to go to heaven?' Did you ever know of any one that wanted to go to hell. Did you ever know of any one that desired to be barred from everlasting life. Desire is not sufficient. All of the ten wanted to enter in, and yet half of them were barred from admission. Friends, if you are to be saved, desire must ripen into decision.

"Not only all of the ten wanted to enter into the feast, but all of the ten undoubtedly expected to enter in. If you had gone to any of those prominent society people who were barred from admission and had said to them, 'You are not going to enter into that wedding festival,' they would have said, 'It is evident that you don't know who we are. We belong to the most prominent, influential families of this community and we want you to know that I, at least, will.' Oh, friends, at the judgment day, the attitudes of these many surprises. Multitudes of these who thought that because their names were on the roll of the lodge or the club or the church that they were saved, we have paid our dues, we have done good works will be surprised to find that they are eternally lost.

"All of the ten expected to enter in. And again, all of the ten had the same invitation. The five who were turned away from entrance had the same chance to enter in as those that did. There is not one in the hearing of my voice but what God loves. There isn't one here that Jesus Christ is not willing to save, and if you are willing to turn your back upon sin and receive Christ, you can have the assurance before you leave this building that you have everlasting life. The invitation is to you.

Lamps Were Alike. "Now we would judge from this that half of the people are to be saved and half are to be lost. But one thing is certain that everyone is either to enter in or to be barred out. As far as we know, these guests had the same kind of lamps, and the lamp here represents intellect, ability, opportunity. The difference was not in the lamps. The difference was in whether or not there was oil in them, and all through the scripture oil is used as a type of the Holy Spirit.

"But you couldn't tell merely as you looked at these ten bridesmaids which were to enter in and which refused the invitation. Yes, as long as the lay there asleep, if you had looked at their upturned faces, you could not have said, 'that one is going in, and that one is going to be shut out.' I wouldn't dare to walk down through these aisles tonight and say 'this one is going to heaven' and 'that one is going to everlasting doom.' But the word of God says that when you become Christians that when you yield your heart to Jesus, God puts a mark on your forehead, unseen by man, but seen by the Lord, and everyone who reads His own, and everyone who reads His own, upon his brow the brand of Cain, I took a crisis to reveal the difference in these lives. It always takes crises to reveal difference in lives.

"Here are two boats. One is well made and the other is poorly made. As they sail from the port when the sea is smooth and the sky is clear when the wind is calm, you cannot tell the well made one from the poorly made one. But wait until the skies are overcast, and the waves dash high and the wind roars through the rigging and the poorly made boat will break to pieces and sink—but the well made boat will sink in safety through the storm and enter the port in peace.

"At midnight a great cry went up. 'The Bridegroom cometh. Go ye out and meet Him.' Sooner than you think the call is going to come to you to leave your books, your school books, your account books, your leave your office and school, your store and home, to give a last account at the judgment—and that hour is going to come sooner than you think!

"Now we are told that all the ten virgins arose and trimmed their lamps, and the foolish said to the wise, 'Give us of your oil, for our lamps are gone out.'

They Were Not Ready.

"Now, we are beginning to see why they were so careless and so thoughtless. They thought that there was time enough yet, they believed they could get ready, and that if they were caught at a critical moment, on account of the forethought of friends, they would be all right. I CAN'T SAY TOO MUCH. The evangelistic campaign through which we have just passed seems to me to emphasize two things:

1. There is no message so powerful and so effective as the gospel of the love of the Son of God, well seasoned with the law of a God who cannot look down upon any form of sin with any degree of allowance.

2. The powerful influence exerted on a community when it witnesses Christian people laying aside for the time all non-essentials and working shoulder to shoulder to bring men and women to Jesus Christ.

3. The effectiveness of a fine equipment for doing the work of the Lord. Our churches would quadruple their power if the thought and money and personal effort that are ordinarily put into everyday business affairs were similarly put into religious work.

4. That the mass of men and women do believe in Jesus Christ, and the church ought to be getting a much larger following than she has.

5. That the newspaper is a power the church has not yet learned to use. Too much cannot be said of the Advocate's splendid work during the campaign.

CALVIN G. HAZLETT, Pastor First Pres. Church.

THE ADVOCATE HELPED.

Eternity, alone, will reveal the full measure the full measure of blessing that has come to Newark county through the Lyon evangelistic campaign. It can not be estimated in money values. It is not indicated by the number of converts, although the number and character of those turning the Christ has astonished the most sanguine. It is best expressed by saying that a new moral and religious atmosphere has been created. Newark is truly a changed city. To this end the Advocate has contributed mightily, through the accurate and enthusiastic reports of the movements of the campaign.

WALTER D. WARD, Pastor Central Church of Christ.

said to a man, 'Are you a Christian,' and he replied: 'Well, no, I can't say that I am, but I am a Christian son and one of the best Christian daughters that a man ever had.' He is a sort of father-in-law to Christianity.

"To another man I say, 'Are you a Christian,' and he says, 'I can't say that I am, but I am a Christian son and one of the best Christian daughters that a man ever had.' He is a sort of father-in-law to Christianity.

"We are told that while the foolish went to buy oil, thinking there was still time, the Bridegroom came, and they that were ready went in. Paul said, just as his life closed, 'I am ready'—and that word 'ready' in ready, used on ships at sea, expressive of a boat at full sail to catch the breeze, 'I am ready.' Everything in life—all success—depends upon getting a good 'ready.'

"When France declared war on Germany in 1871, the news came to General Von Moltke, commander-in-chief of the German army, at midnight. The messenger entered the room and handed him the news dispatches. That field marshal went to his desk and took out some envelopes addressed his corps of commanders, gave them to the messenger to deliver, went back to bed and went to sleep. There was no worry in his life. Why? Because he was ready.

"Oh, friends are you ready to meet God? "Said a little girl to her mother. "Mamma, I see grandma getting ready to go out in the country for a visit. I saw you getting ready to go to certain some friends. Papa is getting ready to go away on business. But I never see anybody getting ready for heaven."

"Isn't it strange that people will have great forethought about business, but no forethought about the things of eternity?" The evangelist told the story of an old negro "down south" who was asked "Has your master gone to heaven?"

Not Going That Way. "No, boss," replied the old servant. "I don't think he has. You see, when he was living, and was going to go anywhere, he always talked about in a long time in advance. And then I used to have to help him get ready for it. He never said anything about going to heaven. I guess he ain't going that way."

"Friends, many of you are acting as if you expected to live on this old world forever," declared the speaker emphasizing this point by the story of a wealthy man who was showing a friend over his possessions.

Proud of his business forethought, he wealthy man remarked that every building on his estate was fully insured. His little son, who happened to be in the parlor, looked up in his father's face and said "Papa, is your soul insured?" He hadn't thought about that.

"Like the foolish virgins, he came on the crisis without any oil in his lamp. 'They that were ready went in.' "I would like to stop right here if I dared," said the evangelist—"but I cannot. I have duty to perform to you—and the door was shut." Does that talk very much as though everyone was going to be saved at last. You cannot stand in the doorway. You are either on the inside or the outside. If you have no oil in your lamp, if you have not received Jesus Christ and confessed Him the Son of God, as your Lord and Saviour, and been born of God's spirit, God says you are outside the door—lost, lost, eternally lost."

The speaker related in his most dramatic fashion the story of an aged French miser who was wont to go to the bank beneath his house to count his gold and silver hoard. One night as he descended the ladder to the subterranean vault, the wind forced the door shut behind him, and although he tried with almost superhuman strength to force it open, it resisted his efforts. He came to death amid his gold and silver. 'The door was shut.'

"My friends," pleaded Dr. Lyon, more earnestly than he was ever heard to preach during the entire Newark campaign, "now we are coming to the close of this series of meetings. In a moment this meeting will end. Is the door shut against you?"

The Door Was Shut. "There was a home of loving parents in the south that sent their only son to northern college, and the son became degraded, drunken and debauched. He was expelled and came home in disgrace, to the great shame and sorrow of those loving parents. They prayed with him, and tried to help him, and it seemed the more they did for him, the worse he got. At last he broke his mother's heart and she came down to her death. The father hoped against hope that the mother's death would strike the son's heart. He hoped in vain." A few days after the death of the mother, Dr. Lyon continued, the son—luck his father when the aged parent refused to give him money for his dissipation. The father went to the mound beneath which his dear wife lay buried and sobbed, 'Oh mother, mother, we did not know you could for him, didn't we? And the more we did for him the less he appreciated it. Mother, he has gone too far. It's too late. We must bid him good-bye forever.' The father arose, returned to his home, and when that evening the son stepped up on the porch and started to enter the door, the father refused him entrance. 'No, you have gone too far,' he sadly said, 'You shall never cross this threshold again.'

"Listen, friends," continued the evangelist, "it is possible to stretch even the most ductile wire so far that at last it will break. God says, 'My spirit will not always strive with man.' The door is turning on its hinges, and when that door is shut once it will be shut forever.

"Some one says, 'Some time I am going to become a Christian.' Tonight is your night. Enter while you may, for very soon it is going to be everlastingly too late." In closing, Dr. Lyon told the story of the pitiful death of an unconverted man in New Jersey, a man who during a series of revival meetings had continued rejecting Christ. The leader of the meetings happened to be in that same town on the day of the sinner's death and went to give him a final hour of comfort before the face covered with the pallor of approaching death, and realizing that no time could be lost, he offered to kneel beside the bed and pray for ten minutes, holding the dying man's hand in his throughout the prayer.

If you will accept Jesus Christ, just press on my hand and I'll know it is all right," he told the dying man, as he started to pray. He prayed for the ten minutes but no pressure came—the dying man seemed to want to say something; as the Christian friend stooped over the bed, he caught the words "I am going to be a Christian some time, but I'm not ready"—with a gasp he was dead—unsaved—and the door was shut.

God grant that the door of your opportunity is turning upon its hinges, may accept Jesus Christ—for soon the door will be shut forever. Enter into the open door while you may," almost sobbed the evangelist as he held out his hands in an impassioned treaty for the lost to come to Christ and accept of the cup of salvation that He alone can offer.

Solemnity in Parting.

The solemnity of the closing hour and the necessity of losing no further time in the bringing of souls to Christ seemed to grasp all. It was as though the closing hour of life had come—men were seen to start for the door and then return to their seats to talk over the possibilities and the fact of eternity with the personal workers who never labored more earnestly and faithfully in trying the gospel of their Christ. It was a glorious climax for the six weeks of service in the ranks of the Master—a climax that never will be forgotten by the hundred and fifty men and women who definitely accepted the lowly Nazarene as the Guide of their lives. The sight of hundreds being brought to safety from the storms of life at the eleventh hour of their life's opportunity, brought many a tear to the eyes of friends and workers in the audience, and gave an almost inexpressible impetus to the final hymns of the campaign, who still remained in the tabernacle lifted their voices in the sweet, friendly strains of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," and "God be with You Till We Meet Again." The campaign was brought to a close shortly after ten-thirty o'clock by Dr. Lyon who pronounced the benediction, invoking the greatest blessings that God might bestow on the citizens of Newark in the promotion of their spiritual happiness.

And in spite of all Dr. Lyon's efforts to shift from his shoulders tribute which is justly due him for his labors, there were many who understood for the first time as they left the tabernacle with the benediction of God's servant in their ears—the wonderful conception which Shakespeare presents when, in Hamlet, he says, "What a piece of work is a man! How noble in reason! How infinite in faculties! In form and moving, how express and admirable! In action, how like an angel! In apprehension, how like a God."

Vast Crowd at First Sunday Service

There were six thousand persons in the tabernacle when Prof. Mitchell mounted the rostrum at ten o'clock Sunday morning and was greeted by a tremendous outburst of applause. The chorus choir was already in its place, over five hundred singers appearing for service. Their voices did not seem to have been impaired by the recent strenuous changes in weather, for never has the magnificent Eccelle anthem "Crown Him Lord of All," been sung with more earnestness and inspiration than it was by the Newark singers on the closing day of the Lyon campaign. The splendid audience lent enthusiasm to their interpretation of the great hymn of laudation—not a boisterous enthusiasm, but the reverent, wholesome praise of the Creator, and in this attitude they approached the Almighty One in the singing of the Doxology. Prof. Mitchell then asked that the Lord's Prayer be said in unison by everyone present, and the devout offering of the greatest petition in the annals of all history was sent heavenward by the six thousand voices as though it were the individual petition of a veritable moral giant.

A reading from the scriptures by "Judge" Holloway, and a fervent prayer by Rev. J. Worriston Thomas, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church, in which he petitioned for the souls of the city.

Think before you vote tomorrow. You can't make any mistake if you simply put your X mark in the circle
under the rooster.

It's in the air. We are going to win. Share in the great victory.

Hon. W. D. Fulton is a candidate for re-election to the legislature. Mr. Fulton made a good record in the last legislature and was one of the faithful members in attending all sessions. He will be returned no doubt by a handsome majority.

On to the polls tomorrow.

Wake up, ye sons of men, there is an election tomorrow, and it is going to be a triumphant day for all of Democracy's hosts. Join the happy band and none can deprive you of your portion of the glory.

O. C. Martin is a candidate for County Recorder on the Democratic ticket. He has made a splendid record as deputy sheriff is an excellent penman and would give the office that care and attention which is so necessary on account of the amount of business transacted. He should and will undoubtedly receive a handsome majority.

The Democratic candidates for Commissioner are Ben B. Jones, Frank Dumm, and Joseph Orr. The commissioner's office is a hard one to fill. Nearly all of the business transacted from there is one of judgment and we do not all look at matters alike. Messrs.
Jones, Dumm and Orr will give their honest judgment in all matters and look after the county's affairs as they would their own.
These men have made a success of their own business and they will make a success of the county's.
You can make no mistake by supporting Messrs. Jones, Dumm and Orr.

Bert O. Horton, candidate for Clerk of Courts on the Democratic ticket is making a splendid fight for the office. He has the assurance of a solid Democratic vote and also that of many Republicans that they will support him at the polls tomorrow. He is deserving in every way and will make an excellent official.

Write it in letters of living light across the sky election night—
"Wilson has won."

WILSON'S ELECTION WILL NOT CAUSE A BUSINESS PANIC

From the Peoples' National Bank of Pittsburgh, Pa., this statement comes: "It must be accepted as fortunate that the present business activity is coincident with a Presidential year, and that there is no sign of abatement even in the midst of the most strenuous campaign ever waged within the memory of the elder class of voters.
That business has continued to force ahead, ignoring the political outlook, emphasizes the fact that prosperity is less dependent upon the party policies than the old-time partisans would have the people believe, and that the sum of natural economic factors outweighs in importance all party platforms and oratorical fulminations based thereon. The effect should be less reliance upon statute made cure-alls and more reliance upon the bounty of nature and the industry of the individual."

THINK BEFORE YOU VOTE

If you want the cost of living reduced, vote for Woodrow Wilson.

If you are opposed to leagled monopoly, vote for Woodrow Wilson.

If you are opposed to a government of favors and special privileges, vote for Woodrow Wilson.

If you want the door of business opportunity kept open for all the American people, vote for Woodrow Wilson.

If you are opposed to the control of the Trusts, vote for Woodrow Wilson.

OUR SPLENDID COUNTY TICKET

The Democracy of Licking county can be proud of the personnel of the county ticket that they present for election on tomorrow. Every man upon it, whether a candidate for re-election or for his initial election is one to whom the party gives its unqualified endorsement and support. They are all clean men of unblemished character and eminently qualified for the positions for which they have been nominated. An absolutely united Democracy presents them to the people for their votes.

THE G. O. P. PANIC HOWL

As a last resort, the Trust grafters are now shamelessly trying to scare the people into believing that Democratic government means failure and disaster.
Democratic state government has made good in Ohio,
New Jersey, Indiana, Massachusetts, New York, and other states from Maine to Texas, as has the present Democratic lower house of Congress. Why not in the Presidency? If they can scare you now, they can scare you four, eight and twelve years hence, or for the balance of your lives, and maintain the Trust begetting, money concentrating graft of high tariff forever.

GIVES IT UP.

The Columbus correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch (Republican) thus writes to that paper giving up the result in Ohio:

"The apparently united condition of the Democrats, whose almost solid phalanx is confronted by a divided opposition gives Woodrow Wilson for President, and James M. Cox, for Governor, the best of it from the viewpoint of mathematics.

"There are evidences that might resolve themselves into a landslide for Wilson.

"Roosevelt has been gaining in the closing days of the campaign.
There are situations in this state that might work for a Roosevelt landslide. This is not strongly probable but entirely possible.

"There is no premonitory symptom of a landslide for Taft."

WILSON AND PENSIONS

The latest campaign falsehood to be sprung against Governor Wilson is that he does not favor giving pensions to the soldiers who fought to preserve the Union.
The Democratic presidential candidate never made such a statement, but on the contrary he believes that the government should be liberal in its treatment of the men who responded to the call to put down the rebellion.

Chairman William F. McCombs of the Democratic National committee stated Governor Wilson's position with reference to pensions for civil war veterans in the following telegram which he sent Friday to W. L. Finley, chairman of the Democratic State Executive committee:

"The canard purporting to come from Georgia that Governor Wilson is inimical to pensions for the soldiers who fought to preserve the Union is a lie out of whole cloth. Governor Wilson made no such statement. He is in favor of liberal appropriations for the men who responded to the call of Lincoln. Please see that this lie is corrected promptly.
W. F. McCombs, chairman Democratic National committee."

For Coroner, the present incumbent, Dr. W. E. Wiyiarch, is the Democratic candidate. He has administered the affairs of that office in the past two years in a splendid manner and has received many encomiums for his work. He is thorough in the examination of the many cases which he has had and is deserving of re-election by a handsome majority.

A POLITICAL PANIC.

It is idle for Gov. Wilson to deny that his election would mean a panic. The panic is already here. It is confined entirely to the Taft headquarters and the Roosevelt headquarters, and will be confined there, but it is the real-est sort of panic.

As for the rest of the country,
it knew the day Woodrow Wilson was nominated that he would be elected, and it knew that the Congress elected with him would revise the tariff. There was nothing in that to disturb honest industry, and so business has improved every month since to the extent that prosperity is booming from ocean to ocean. The political panic is another matter, and the broad-line of the Republican and Bull Moose candidates extends for miles and miles.

Wilson is a winner. Do you not like to be with a winner? Then vote.

Senator Wm. E. Haas has made an earnest fight for re-election.
He has been a hard working, and faithful official and has always voted on any labor measure in the interest of the masses. His record in the last Senate was a credit to himself and the district.

PROGRESSIVE PARTY WILL BE DEMOCRACY'S FUTURE OPPOSITION

The foregoing conclusion is that Woodrow Wilson will be elected president of the United States.
The only question that puzzles is whether Taft or Roosevelt will run second. In this connection it can be truthfully said that the dissolution of the Republican party is at hand. Roosevelt and the men leagued with him have established beyond question the fact that the Republican convention at Chicago was filled with fraud, and that the platform there adopted was a tissue of catch phrases aimed to trap the voters without in anywise pledging refusal from the grasp in which they have been held by vast corporate interests. It is probable that no man save Roosevelt, and not even he had he not been battling for the truth, could have led a new party to the prominence and permanency it has attained. And the fact may as well be admitted now as later that the Progressive party is a political fixture. It will be reckoned with in the future when the Republican party exists only in memory.

"WELL SAID, SIR."

"I WOULD RATHER LOSE IN A CAUSE THAT I KNOW SOME DAY WILL TRIUMPH, THAN TO TRIUMPH IN A CAUSE THAT I KNOW MUST ULTIMATELY LOSE."

WOODROW WILSON.

DEMOCRATS FOR PROSPERITY

Democrats are better friends of Prosperity than are the Republicans. Democrats favor Prosperity for the Many. Republicans only favor it for the Few represented by the Trusts. Prosperity for the Many means permanent Prosperity. Prosperity for the Few—the Trusts—gives them power to create the panics from which the country has suffered and from which it will continue to suffer as long as the Trusts rule.

Jesse W. Hursey, Democratic candidate for Auditor, has made a splendid canvass for the office. He made hundreds of friends all over the county and will receive a splendid vote tomorrow. His previous record is a splendid tribute to his efficiency, and that he would make one of the best county auditors ever elected to office in Licking county is a foregone conclusion.

CONFIDENCE OF THE BUSINESS WORLD

The present booming of business is the fact that the business world knows Governor Wilson will do just what he says he will do. His record is one of complete fulfillment of his promises. All well posted business men know that Governor Wilson's election will help rather than disturb business, because they have absolute confidence that he means every word of it when he says:

"We don't want to disturb the industry of the country. The changes (in the tariff) which we make should be made only at such a rate and in such a way as will least interfere with the normal and healthful course of commerce and manufacture."

The voters of this district, especially the old soldiers, will give Congressman W. A. Ashbrook a handsome vote. Congressman Ash-brook has been a hard worker for his constituents. He has that reputation in Congress among his fellow members, and will continue the same course in the next house.

A cross-mark X in the circle under the rooster votes a straight Democratic ticket.

Let it be said that you helped elect Wilson. You will never regret it.

Think before you vote tomorrow. You can't make any mistake if you simply put
your X mark in the circle
under the rooster.

Man for man, the Democratic ticket measures up to the men on any other ticket to be voted for this year. A cross-mark (X) in the circle under the rooster will vote for clean men.

Not all Presidential candidates are chasing rainbows or feeding themselves on hopes. The Prohibition candidate does not expect to be elected; he does not even expect to carry a state. He is impartial, therefore, and as he has been traveling around the country a good deal he is likely to know what is going on. He says that Wilson will carry forty states, Roosevelt five, Taft three, "and Debs and I will divide the others."
It certainly does look as though Governor Wilson would get enough votes to make his election pretty nearly unanimous.

Attorney J. Howard Jones is the Democratic candidate for prosecuting attorney. He is a brilliant talker and orator of ability and would make one of the best prosecuting attorneys ever elected to that office in Licking county. No mistake can be made by voting for Mr. Jones.

J. W. Rutledge is a candidate for re-election to the office of county treasurer on the Democratic ticket. He has made a record during his incumbency of office that he can be proud of. He is a splendid gentleman, a thorough business man, and possesses all the requirements necessary for making a first class official. You will make no mistake when you vote for "Jim" Rutledge.

Tuesday do not forget to vote for Bert O. Horton for Clerk of Courts. Mr. Horton has every qualification for making a splendid clerk.

For Surveyor on the Democratic ticket the name of Fred S. Cully is presented. Mr. Cully has made an excellent official and has received many commendations for his work in the surveyor's office.
He is thoroughly competent and a vote for him will mean the endorsement of the good work which he has been doing for the past several years.

If you are with us vote with us.
Win with Wilson.

F. E. Slabaugh, the present sheriff, is a candidate for re-election. He has made an excellent official during his first term and has administered the affairs of the office in a manner perfectly satisfactory to the tax payer. He should be elected by a handsome majority.

Did you ever see anything look so ridiculous as the last hour campaign claims of the Republicans and Bull Moosers?

HURSEY FOR AUDITOR.

J. W. Hursey, Democratic candidate for county auditor, has served with efficiency and integrity, both as deputy clerk under
O. C. Larason and E. M. Larason and as Clerk of the Courts.

Mr. Hursey was first appointed deputy by Clerk O. C. Larason in 1898. Prior to that time he taught school. He was nominated without opposition and was one of three Democrats elected that year.
He was re-elected, serving in all for five years. Realizing his fitness and his popularity Mr. Hursey was appointed deputy by Clerk E. M. Larason. Mr. Hursey is not only efficient, but is economical in the conduct of public office. His record is good. He will be elected county auditor tomorrow and he will serve with credit to himself and will always work to the interest of the people.

The New York Herald, (Ind.)
gives the figures that make it mathematically certain that the Taft candidate for Governor of New York will be third in the race and that Taft himself will be third in the Presidential race in the Empire State.

Think before you vote and be sure to cast your ballot straight against the Trust's rule and the high cost of living.

No man calling himself a Democrat will miss going to the polls tomorrow, if not disabled by sickness and vote for Wilson and the Democratic ticket.

With a United Democracy as never before and the Republican party split in twain, the election of the national, state and local Democratic tickets Tuesday are assured.

Stand up and be counted. Your ballot is a certificate of faith and confidence that Wilson will appreciate.

SOCIETY

A pleasant masquerade surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Glenn, in Gay street, Friday night, by the schoolmates of their son, Robert. Those present were: Misses Katie Brumelle, Corinne Fyle, Mary Schuaidt, Hazel Wilson, Daisy Dial, Muriel Hockley, Gladys Beal, Camille Sawyer, Messrs. Sammie Glenn, Herbert Jones, Forest Muhleman, George Fromholtz, Robert Glenn, Roger Stoffer, Vernon Jones, Roy McGrade, Clyde Reid, Clayton Brown, Noel Sheen, Max Osburn, John Feurriegel, Joseph Dunn and French Glenn. Mrs. Glenn was assisted by Miss Hazel Wiley.

The Chicago Examiner of a recent date contained the following from Berlin regarding Miss Elizabeth Schiller of Chicago. Miss Schiller will be remembered as having assisted Miss Elsa Hirschberg in the musicals given here during the summer.

"The Berlin critics and the operating public are still talking about the remarkable debut of an American girl, Elizabeth Schiller of Chicago, last week at the Trier opera house, where she has been engaged for the coming year. Miss Schiller sang the role of Pamina in 'The Magic Flute' and fairly took the audience by storm." She was recalled again and again.

Last Tuesday evening a crowd of girls masked in various costumes suitable for Halloween, gathered at the home of Enola Beckham on Grant street and completely surprised her. Various games were indulged in and at a late hour refreshments were served.

The guests were: Misses Enola Beckham, Lena Robinson, Genevieve Beckham, Blanche Varner, Jennie Perabaso, Marie Beck, Annie Cline, Tillie Reidel, Annie Verab, Hallie W. son, Hazel Sessor, Ella Cunningham, Bertha Baker, Margaret Fernon, Mar-

Miss Grace Gorby of Buena Vista street was hostess to the members of the Research club Saturday afternoon. The following program was given: Quotations, Politics—Miss Haughey. Paper, Presidential Aspirants—Mrs. McMillen. Reading, Selected—Miss Kilpatrick. Spelling Contest—Mrs. Hawkins. King Lear, Act II, Leader, Mrs. Kilpatrick. Assistants, Miss Van Horn, Miss Frye and Miss Bowers. Critic—Club. Guests of the club were Miss Mary Larason, Miss Florence Hart and Miss Valeria Pickering.

HUFFMAN—RINEHART.
Saturday evening, November 2, at six o'clock, Mr. Herbert H. Huffman of Granville and Miss Lola J. Rinehart of Newark were united in marriage at the home of Rev. James M. Lamp, the officiating minister. Mr. and Mrs. Huffman expect to make their home in Columbus.

ST. JOHN—THOMPSON.
Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Dr. Sparks solemnized the marriage of Mr. Henry St. John and Miss Esa A. Thompson, young people residing at Utica. Immediately after the ceremony they returned to Utica where they will go to housekeeping. They have many friends to join in best wishes.

GABE—SHAW.
On Saturday evening Squire D. M. Jones officiated at the marriage of Joseph G. Gabe and Mayme May Shaw, both of this city. The groom is a glassworker and the couple will live in this city.

Damage Suit.
Dr. F. E. Corkwell has filed an action for damages in the sum of $130.50 against Dr. H. E. Postle in the court of Squire D. M. Jones, alleging that the latter is responsible for injuring a horse belonging to the plaintiff.

Dr. Corkwell states that on April 17, 1912, his horse, a Kentucky thoroughbred, was hitched in front of his home in Granville street and that the defendant carelessly drove his automobile into the rear of the carriage, damaging the vehicle and jamming the horse against the telegraph pole to which it was hitched. He states that the horse, which had previously been gentle, had been made a "kicker" and that he has been otherwise injured.

Divorce Petition.
By her attorney, J. W. Horner, Essie M. Swisher has filed a petition in probate court praying that she be divorced from Thornton Swisher, whom she married in 1904. Gross neglect of duty and failure to provide are her allegations.

Mrs. Swisher charges her husband with dissipation and idleness and states that she has been compelled to work to support herself and has given him of her means.

The plaintiff prays divorce and asks the court to restrain the defendant from interfering with her in any way.

Admitted to Probate.
The will of John Elmus Dorsey, late of Newark, was admitted to probate on Saturday. Lizzie M. Dorsey was appointed executrix with a bond of $100.

CHATSWITH THINKING WOMEN
by Barbara Boyd

Have You Joined the Housewives' League?

As a result of the present high cost of living, an organization has been formed in the City of New York which promises to be of vast service to the women of the country. This is the Housewives' League, and it is an organized effort to prevent sales where prices for foodstuffs are abnormally high; to educate housewives along lines of economical buying, and to bring the commodities which are used daily in the household to standards of excellence which will insure a healthy young America.

But its work is not confined to the City of New York. In fifteen States the movement has received such cordial support and such accessions to its membership that State organizations are being formed.

And this country-wide membership with its enormous numbers can be a tremendous factor in regulating the price and the quality of food. If a pitched battle comes between it and the trusts the probability is that it can vanquish the trusts, as no Congressional committee of investigation or decree of the Supreme Court has been able to do. For the trusts simply exist for the profits they can make, and if the women, by shrewd management and concerted action, reduce these profits, the trusts will find business is not paying enough to continue. For it is to be noted that foods, such as meat, butter and eggs, that are trust controlled, though this control may not be seen, are the same price practically from the Atlantic to the Pacific; whereas, those things that are sold by the producer himself, vary according to the locality and cost of production thereof.

The Housewives' League purposes work of a wide scope. One thing they have in mind is the building of a food exchange. This will be a building in which will be an exposition of everything which is pertinent to the science of housewifery; an assembling place where out-of-town members may meet and confer, and a centre of information, from which the outlying districts may be apprised by ticker-service of the state of the market.

The basement of the building will be a shipping room. Whenever conditions are such that produce is being abnormally withheld from the market, or that cold storage articles are being forced on the purchaser, small truck farmers, poultrymen and dairymen will be invited to ship their products right to the headquarters and dispose of them there.

Above this will be a large room given over to the telegraph, the telephone and the ticker; and from this room will come in and go out all necessary information upon prices, quantity and quality of various foodstuffs which the housewives of the League may need to know.

The entire front of the second floor will be given up to a permanent exposition of articles and products needed for the household. Nothing will be permitted there which has not been tested and reported on by several members.

It is believed the exchange will produce two important results. It will serve to insure fair prices for food products, and it will raise the standard of quality.

It is also planned to issue a daily sheet for the benefit of those who cannot easily get away from their homes. This will give in detail the information which the ticker and the telegraph and telephone give to those within their radius. This little sheet will be mailed to League members who need it.

You can easily see what a vast instrument this League can be for good. Is it not worth joining? Is it not worth organizing in your community if there is none there at present?

STANLEY CABOT HAS TURNED UP IN COLUMBUS

Stanley Cabot, the 10-year-old boy who so mystified the local juvenile court officers about two weeks ago by appearing from "somewhere" and disappearing "elsewhere," has again appeared this time in the clutches of the juvenile court in Columbus. He was brought to the juvenile detention home in Columbus Wednesday night by a police officer, who says the boy told him that he had no home. The Columbus authorities were of the opinion that he had run away from some institution, for on his underclothing was found the mark, "S. C. No. 5." When questioned he refused to say where he came from, other than that he had come down from Cleveland on a freight train and that his home was in Chicago Junction.

An Advocate representative, who had followed Stanley's fortunes while he was in Newark, informed the local officials of the fact that he had been taken in charge by the Columbus officers.

The Newark court advised Columbus that Stanley had been under the eye of the local juvenile officer for some time, after having told the same story as that used in Columbus concerning his home. Just as in the case of the Newark officials, the Columbus court wired Chicago Junction, only to be told that the lad was not known there.

The "S. C. No. 5," which mystified the juvenile officers in Columbus, is the mark put on the boy's clothing at the Licking County Children's Home, to which place he was sent a little over a week ago.

After being committed to the institution, Stanley, together with a boy named Johnson, ran away. This was the last that the authorities at the home saw of him, but his companion was captured by Zanesville police and returned to Newark.

When Officer Sheridan of the local court got into communication with the Columbus authorities, he was informed that the boy would be sent to a Catholic institution in Cincinnati.

GOV. WILSON IS INJURED IN AUTO MISHAP

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 4.—Governor Wilson forgot about his lacerated scalp today and dug into his correspondence. He said he was not bothered in the least by the wound received yesterday while riding in an automobile.

The mishap occurred in the early hours of the morning. The governor had spoken Saturday night at Red Bank and left for Princeton, a distance of 45 miles shortly before 11 o'clock. He rode in the limousine of Abraham I. Elkus, a New York lawyer, who lives at Red Bank, accompanied by Captain William J. MacDonald, his personal bodyguard, who was shaken up and bruised.

"The machine was running about 15 miles an hour," narrated the governor, "and we were going very smoothly near Lightsown when the jar came. The chauffeur did not see a mound of earth, being deceived by a shadow thrown across the road by a lug up and the road of earth presented a ridge. As we struck, Captain MacDonald and I were thrown against the roof of the car."

"I felt of my head and found that it was bleeding. I knew I wasn't seriously hurt, but knew that it was imprudent to continue the journey in the cold, so we stopped some passersby and within a few minutes found the home of Dr. Titus at Lightsown. He dressed the wound carefully and cleaned it and we went on to Princeton."

TOMORROW'S VOTE WILL EXCEED ALL PREVIOUS RECORDS

New York, Nov. 4.—The vote cast for president at tomorrow's elections throughout the United States will exceed all previous records. Reports from all states indicate intense partisanship as the election draws near, and unusual activity on the part of campaign leaders to get out the vote, and developments in the three-cornered presidential contest which indicate a determination to bring every voter to the polls.

Colonel Roosevelt, in a statement from Oyster Bay, today made the direct charge that in New York Republican leaders are urging voters to vote for Governor Wilson. This was denied at Governor Wilson's New Jersey headquarters. The New Jersey governor has issued further admonitions to Democratic leaders to get the voters to the polls so that the maximum Democratic vote would be cast.

The extent to which the Socialist party, with Eugene Debs as its presidential candidate, will cut into the vote of Taft, Wilson and Roosevelt has become a matter of lively conjecture in political headquarters. The Progressive leaders assert that the Socialists will poll a heavy vote, drawing largely from the Republican and Democratic ranks.

WHERE CANDIDATES WILL RECEIVE RETURNS

New York, Nov. 4.—The presidential candidates rested last night with their active participation in the campaign over.

Governor Wilson will vote at Princeton and receive the returns Tuesday night at his home there.

President Taft will vote in Cincinnati and remain there at the home of his brother, Chas. P. Taft, until the results are known Wednesday morning.

Coincidentally at Oyster Bay, will vote early and devote the day to rest. Each of the candidates will have a special telegraph wire for the receipt of the election returns.

PRESIDENT DUE AT CINCINNATI THIS EVENING

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 4.—With the arrival of President Taft in this city tonight the preliminaries to probably the most strenuous presidential campaign that Ohio has ever endured will come to an end. The state campaign will wind up with a Cox meeting at Toledo.

FIRST THINGS

The first code of mining, civil and criminal laws for California was prepared by Stephen Johnson Field, the American jurist, who was born in Haddam, Conn., 36 years ago today. This code was adopted generally throughout the West, and was of immense value in bringing order out of the chaos that reigned in the early days following the discovery of gold in California. Justice Field, a brother of the famous Cyrus F. Field, went to San Francisco in 1849 and was probably the first lawyer in the new city of Yubaville, where he was appointed justice of the peace. He was a member of the first legislature under the California constitution. In 1863 he was appointed an associate justice of the United States supreme court. He died in Washington in 1899, two years after his retirement from the bench.

BEN B. JONES

Probably no man in Licking county is better fitted to fill the office of county commissioner than is Ben B. Jones, who is one of the three Democrats nominated by the party for membership in the board of county commissioners.

The office of county commissioner carries with it the direction of the expenditure of great sums of county money and the obvious interests of the tax payers of the county is to have such a power vested in officers who, through practical experience, know the value, quality and cost of building materials and who are versed in the direction of labor in the ways that will mean saving to the county.

Ben B. Jones, a native of Licking county, has, for eighteen years been a successful contractor and builder and in connection with his work has opened several additions to the city. In these years he has amassed a splendid fund of practical knowledge that has been a power in recommending his candidacy to the voters of Licking county.

Genial, straightforward and capable; a worker and not a theorist, essentially a successful man of affairs, Ben B. Jones is deserving of the support of every voter and every tax payer.

COURT OFFICERS FOR NEWSBOYS ASSOCIATION

Toledo, in an effort to further the work of the juvenile court, has an organization that is probably unique. This organization is called the Voluntary Juvenile Court Officers of the Toledo Newsboys' Association. Six young men, who work without pay, have been given official recognition by the judge of the juvenile court and the judge of the police court and work as an auxiliary body. The courts act when cases of violation are brought before them, but these juvenile officers make it their duty to anticipate and prevent violations by a system of warning.

These juvenile officers visit saloons, dance halls, billiard and pool rooms and other public places and warn boys and girls who are accustomed to frequent the places of their violation of the laws.

The organization has been a power for good in Toledo and furnishes a practical suggestion to all who are interested in the welfare of the youth of the country. The report of the officers, issued over the signature of John E. Gunkel, contains a wealth of interesting and valuable statistics covering practically every phase of the work.

AMUSEMENTS

Nancy Boyer Here All This Week.
Newark's favorite actress, Nancy Boyer, is back with us again all this week. She opened her engagement this afternoon with a beautiful production of Grace George's famous play, "Divorçons," and naturally enough, a big crowd of Miss Boyer's friends were on hand to greet her.

and her excellent company. "Divorçons" is a very cleverly written comedy and gives the entire company a splendid chance to show their ability and some very handsome costumes. It is said that the costumes worn by the different members of the company eclipse anything ever seen in this city and if those worn this afternoon are a criterion of what is to come the balance of the week, then the ladies had better prepare their eyes for a feast of things beautiful. Nancy is given superb support by a most capable company, in fact, the very best that has yet surrounded her, and if she does not play to the largest week's business in the history of the Newark Auditorium, it will not be the fault of the company or plays. Never before in all her numerous visits has she had such an excellent line of plays, every one of them having been played by some famous star. Tonight, Nancy will offer "A Bachelor's Romance," a comedy made famous by the late Sol Smith Russell. In spite of the extremely heavy advance sale, the management announces that there are a few choice seats left. Nancy tomorrow will present Elsie Ferguson's greatest hit, "Such a Little Queen." At the evening performance she will present Florence Gears' comedy, "The Marriage of Kitty." The management announces election returns for tomorrow night.

East Lynne.
One of the important shots of the theatrical season will be fired at the Auditorium Monday, Nov. 11, when theatre-goers will have an opportunity to see "at much talked of tear-stirring, laugh-provoking emotional drama, 'East Lynne,' by Joseph

King's new company, a combination of reputation of merit. Prices, 10, 20 and 30 cents.

Two Matinees.
Two large crowds witnessed the two matinees at the Orpheum theatre Saturday afternoon. The children received candy at each performance. There will be two matinees on each Saturday afternoon hereafter, the first at 2:15, the second at 3:30. This is necessary in order to handle the large crowds and all the little ones who turn out at the special candy matinees.

The Orpheum.
Rosal's Animals will lead the bill today at the Orpheum. This is a new kind of animal act, with special scenic effects.

The La Taus, comedy soap bubble jugglers, are said to be a big success wherever they have played. This is a novelty act from start to finish, well dressed and produced in all its entirety, with much comedy.

Whiting and Girard, the girls and their piano, also have a new kind of act. It is different from other singing and piano acts. The young ladies have many good songs and they are experts with the piano.

The Rays, colored comedians and minstrels, with many good old time songs and dances, are real entertainers. This is just the kind of act the patrons of the Little Arcade theatre like, so we are going to give you all the fun you want.

This bill will surely prove to be the best bill ever, refined and high class in every way.

It is also well to remember that three performances will be given on Tuesday evening, as the orders for seats are going so fast it will be hard to take care of the big crowds in two performances. The first show will be at 7:30, the second at 9 and the third at 10:30. The election returns will be received at the theatre by special Western Union wire and will be announced between the acts at all three performances. Manager Boyce has arranged a special set of colored slides of all the candidates which will be shown on the new water screen. Prices will be the same, 10 and 20 cents. Don't forget to order your seats by phone.

The horse car system of Constantinople, operating 30 miles of track, is about to be electrified. The city is also to have telephones and electric lights.

DEBT

Of all the dark bogies that scare and keep you a-tearing your hair and walking the floor in a sweat, of all the dire perils you know, whose pinions are reeking with woe, there's nothing so dreadful as debt. The fellow in debt never knows the meaning of peace and repose; there's always a wolf at his door: it's better on liver to dine than revel in oysters and wine, the which have been charged at the store. It's better to wear your old duds and live on a diet of spuds, for which you have paid out the moon, than dress like a duke or an earl, and feed from a platter of pearl, and always expecting a dun. Oh, debt's an Old Man of the Sea, from whom it is hard to get free—he rides you when you are awake and fills you with sorrow and ache, and gallops you round in your dreams. He gives you an ugly renown and spreads it all over the town, and brings you a harvest of sneers; he takes all the joy from your life, brings shame to your children and wife, and splits your retinue with tears. So keep out of debt if you can: steer clear of the creditor man—and this you can do if you try: it's better to live in a keg and feed on an onion or egg, than eat an unsettled for pie!

NEW DIRECTOR FOR SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 4.—The first step in the establishment socially of a welcome spirit upon the part of Cincinnati musicians toward Dr. Kunwald, the new director of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, occurred today, when Mr. Gantvoort of the College of Music, gave a luncheon to the members of the college faculty, with Dr. Kunwald as the guest of honor. Dr. Kunwald arrived in Cincinnati a few days ago, and much anticipation is felt over what he will accomplish with the local organization, after his brilliant success with the Berlin Philharmonic.

It seemed fitting that the College of Music, which has been so closely identified and also in a great measure responsible for the development and the present standing of the Queen City among the great centers of musical art, should extend the first greeting of the season to the new conductor.

The luncheon was held at the Cincinnati Business Men's Club, and was attended by the entire faculty of the college and several members of the board of trustees. Among the faculty members were several of Dr. Kunwald's European friends and colleagues, notably Louis Victor Saar, the distinguished German composer, and Johannes Miersch, former court violinist of Munich.

ARMAGEDDON OF THE SCRIPTURES

Startling Presentation of Coming Events.

PASTOR RUSSELL'S VIEWS.

Churches of All Denominations and the Civil Powers of Earth Are About to Unite in Common Cause—Powerful Influence Preparing for the Battle of Armageddon—A Reign of Anarchy Will Be the Result of the Warfare Until the Messiah Takes Control.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 3.—The Brooklyn Academy of Music was crowded to the limit today to hear Pastor Russell's discourse on the "Battle of Armageddon." His text was: "He gathered them together unto a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon."

(Revelation xvi, 16.) The speaker said: Armageddon in the Hebrew signifies the "Hill of Megiddo," or Mount of Destruction. It was famous as a battle field in Old Testament times. The Lord has seen fit to associate the name Armageddon, with the great controversy between Truth and Error, right and wrong, God and Mammon, with which this Age will close, perish, and the New Age of Messiah's glory be ushered in. He has purposely used highly symbolic figures of speech in the last book of the Bible, evidently with a view to hiding certain important truths until the time for their revelation. But even in the due time, the Bible assures us, "None of the wicked shall understand" (Daniel xii, 9, 10)—none who are out of heart harmony with God—but only the wise of His people—the "wise virgin" class of the Master's parable.

I have long avoided presentation of my understanding of our text and its context. I take it up now by request and because I believe it is due time to be understood. I discuss my special inspiration. In some particulars my views agree with those of other Bible students, and in other respects they disagree. Each hearer must use his own judgment, do his own Bible study, and reach his own conclusions.

Kindly remember that I am not responsible for the figures of speech used by the Lord. My interpretations do indeed constitute a terrible arraignment of institutions which we have all revered and which embrace good people, of good words and good works. God's saintly people in these various institutions, being comparatively few, are ignored when systems as a whole are dealt with in prophecy.

The Dragon, Beast, False Prophet. Our context tells us that three impure spirits (things) will go forth from the mouth of the Dragon, the Beast and the False Prophet, and these three will be in accord, and symbolically the doctrines are represented by "frogs." These three "frogs" are to have a mighty influence throughout the civilized earth. They are to gather the kings and their armies to the great Battle of Armageddon.

The ecclesiastical kings and princes, and their retinues of clergy and faithful adherents, will be gathered in solid phalanx—Protestant and Catholic. The kings and captains of India, and as many as can be influenced by them, will be gathered to the same side. The political kings and princes, with all their henchmen and retainers, will follow in line on the same side. The financial kings and merchant princes, and all whom they can influence by the most gigantic power ever yet exercised in the world, will join the same side, according to this prophecy.

These "doctrines of demons," represented by the "frogs," will lead many noble people in this great army to assume an attitude quite contrary to their preference. For a time the wheels of liberty and progress will be turned backward and medieval restraints will be considered necessary for self-preservation or for the maintenance of the present order of things.

In giving this interpretation, it is necessary for us to indicate what is symbolized by the Dragon, the Beast, and the False Prophet. Bible students of nearly all denominations agree with us that the "Dragon" of Revelation represents the purely Civil Power. Protestant interpreters generally agree that the "Beast" like a leopard" (Revelation xii, 2) represents the Papacy. But fewer still, we fear, will be ready to support our view that Protestants are the "Image of the Beast" (Revelation xiii, 15) in our context given another name, "the False Prophet." We are no one to accept our interpretation, nor shall we think hard of any who refuse it. We will neither slander nor otherwise injure them now, nor threaten them with eternal torture. They have the same right to their views that I have, and the same right to make their views known to others. And I, for one, will be very glad to consider any thing which opponents may set forth as their interpretations of our text.

"Unsanctified Spirits Like Frogs." The symbolism of Scripture, rightly understood, is always forceful. When the Holy Spirit used a "frog" to symbolically represent certain doctrines or teachings, we may be sure the true application will fit well. A frog has a sage look, a wise look. It swells itself up in an apparent endeavor to impress the beholder. Its great mouth well represents its chief power, used to croak.

Applying these symbols, we learn that an evil spirit, influence, teaching, will come from the Protestant churches federated, from the Church of Rome, and from the Civil authorities, all in full agreement. The spirit of all will be boastful; an air of superior wisdom and knowledge will be proudly assumed—all with croak in harmony. All will tell of dire results that would follow, involving the interests of both the present and the future life, if their counsel be not followed. However contradicting the creeds, the differences will be ignored in the general proposition that nothing ancient must be disturbed, or looked into, or repudiated.

The Divine authority of the Church, and the Divine right of kings, aside from the Church, will not be allowed to conflict. Any persons or teachings in conflict with these boastful and unscriptural claims will be branded as "frogs" speaking from pulpits and platforms and through the religious and secular press. The nobler sentiments of some will be strangled by the philosophy of the same evil spirit which spoke through Caiaphas, the high priest, respecting Jesus. As Caiaphas declared it expedient to commit a crime in violation of justice, human and Divine, to be rid of Jesus and His teachings, so this "frog" spirit will approve of every violation of principle necessary to their self-protection.

The croaking of these "frog" spirits or doctrines will gather the kings and princes, financial, political, religious and industrial into one great army. The spirit of fear, inspired by the croakings of these "frogs," will scourge the passions of otherwise good and reasonable men to fury, desperation. In their blind following of these evil spirits, evil doctrines, they will be ready to sacrifice life and everything on the altar of what they mistakenly suppose is justice, truth and righteousness under a Divine arrangement.

For a brief time, as we understand the Scriptures, these combined forces of Armageddon will triumph. Free speech, free mails, and other liberties which have come to be the very breath of the masses in our day, will be ruthlessly snuffed under the plea of necessity, the glory of God, the commands of the Church, etc. All will seem to be serene, until the great social explosion, or our context described as the "great earthquake." An "earthquake," in symbolic language, signifies social revolution, and the declaration of the context is that none like unto it ever before occurred. (Revelation xvi, 18, 19.) Jesus described it as a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation.—Matthew xxiv, 21.

The Lord Will Gather Them. The false, frog-like teachings will gather together into one host the great, the rich, the wise, the learned and the kings of the earth, to battle. At this juncture Divine Power will step forward, and our text tells us that He shall gather the marshaled hosts to Armageddon—to the Mountain of Destruction. The very thing which they sought to avert by their union, federation, etc., will be the very thing they will hasten. Other Scriptures tell us that God will be represented by the Great Messiah, and that He will be on the side of the masses. Thus we read in Daniel xii, 1: "At that time shall Michael [the Godlike One—Messiah] stand up"—assume authority. He will take possession of His Kingdom in a manner little looked for by many of those who erroneously have been claiming that they were His Kingdom, and authorized by Him to reign in His name and in His stead.

Jesus declared, "His servants ye are unto whom ye render service." Some may be rendering service to Satan and to error, who claim to be rendering service to God and to righteousness, and some of these may be serving ignorantly, as did Saul of Tarsus, who, "verily thought that he did God a service" in persecuting the Church. The same principle holds true reversely. As an earthly king does not hold himself responsible for the moral character of each soldier who fights in his battles, so the Lord does not vouch for the moral character of all who will enlist and fight on His side of any question. "His servants they are to whom they render service," whatever the motive or object prompting them.

The same principles will apply in the coming Battle of Armageddon. God's side of that battle will be the people's side, and the very nondescript host, the people, will be pitted at the beginning of the battle. Anarchists, Socialists, and head-headed radicals of every school of reason and unreason, will be in the forefront of that battle. The majority of the poor and the middle class prefer peace at almost any price. A comparatively small number, God's consecrated people, will at heart be working for Messiah's Kingdom. These will hide the Lord's time and wait patiently for it; they will be of good purpose, knowing the outcome outlined in the "more sure word of prophecy." They will have done well to take place, as unto a light shining in a dark place, until the Day dawn.—II Peter i, 19.

The masses will be restless of their restraints, but will be conscious of their weakness as compared to the kings and princes, financial, religious and political, which will then hold sway. Besides, the masses have no ally with anarchy. They realize that the worst form of government is better than none. The masses will seek relief through the ballot and peaceful readjustment of earth's affairs for the elimination of evil, for the placing of monopolies and utilities and the supplies of nature in the hands of the people for the public good. The crisis will be reached when the hitherto upholders of law shall become violators of the law and resistors of the will of the majority as expressed by the ballot. Fear for the future will lead the well-meaning masses to desperation; and anarchy will result when Socialism fails.

The Cloud's Silver Lining. Horrible would be this outlook for the future did we not have the infallible Word of God assuring us of a glorious outcome! Divine Wisdom has withheld until our day the great knowledge and skill which is at the same time breeding millions and discomforts. Had God lifted the veil a thousand years sooner, the world would have lined up for its Armageddon a thousand years sooner. But that would have been too soon for the Divine purpose, because Messiah's Kingdom is to be the great Thousand-Year-Sabbath of the world's history. God in kindness veiled our eyes until the time when the gathering to Armageddon would immediately precede Messiah's taking to Himself His great power, and beginning His reign.—Revelation xi, 17, 18.

"Send Them Strong Delusions." St. Paul wrote prophetically of our time, that it would be one of serious trial and testing to many professing to be Christians. The reason for this he states—they received not the Truth in the love of it. (II Thessalonians ii, 10, 11.) They preferred their own erroneous theories, the Apostle explains, and therefore God will give them over to a "strong delusion," and let them believe the lie which they preferred, and let them suffer for missing the Truth which they did not love. Thus they will be in the condemned host, "fighting against God," because of their lack of love for the Truth.

It is sad to say that we all as Christians have been laboring under a thorough delusion respecting God's Plan. We have claimed that Christ set up His Church in Kingdom power, and that the Church has been reigning on the earth as His representative. On the strength of this delusion, Jews and heretics have been persecuted to death as opponents to Christ's Kingdom. All the while we thoughtlessly repeated the Lord's prayer: "Thy Kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth, as in Heaven." We knew that the Redeemer said that He would come again to make us His Bride and joint-heirs; but we ignored the Scriptures. We were drunk, as the Scriptures symbolically say, "all nations were drunk" with the false doctrine. It is this false doctrine that will constitute the "frog" spirit which soon will begin to croak and to prepare for Armageddon.

The Bible presentation is that the world is a section of the universe in rebellion against Divine authority, under the captaincy of Satan and his associated fallen angels. By Divine grace Jesus has already "tasted death for every man," and the merit of that sacrifice must eventually grant Adam and his posterity a full, fair opportunity for the attainment of everlasting life. All who thus see the Divine program and are walking in the light may know something at least respecting the "times and seasons." These brethren "are not in darkness, that that day [and that battle of Armageddon] should overtake" them "as a thief"—un-awares.

Armageddon Not Yet but Soon. For forty years the Armageddon forces have been mustering for both sides of the conflict. Strikes, lockouts and riots, great and small, have been merely incidental skirmishes as the belligerent parties crossed each other's paths. Court and Army scandals in Europe, Insurance, Trust and Court scandals in America, have shaken public confidence. Dynamite plots, charged by turns on employees and on employers, have further shaken confidence and tended to make each distrustful of the other. Bitter and angry feelings on both sides are more and more manifest. The lines of battle are daily becoming more distinctly marked. Nevertheless Armageddon cannot yet be fought. Other matters intervene, according to prophecy.

Gentle times have still two years to run. The "Image of the Beast" of our context must yet receive life-power. The Image must be transformed from a mere mechanism to a living force. Protestant Federation realizes that its organization will still be futile unless it receive vitalization—unless its clergy directly or indirectly shall be recognized as possessed of apostolic ordination and authority to teach. This prophecy indicates will come from the two horned beast, which, we believe, symbolically represents the Church of England. High-handed activities of Protestantism and Catholicism, operating in conjunction for the suppression of human liberties, await this vivifying of the Image. This may come soon, but Armageddon cannot precede it, but must follow—perhaps a year after it, according to our view of the Prophecy.

Still another thing intervenes: Although the Jews are gradually flowing into Palestine, gradually obtaining control of the land of Canaan, and although reports say that already nineteen millionaires are there, nevertheless prophecy requires an evidently larger number of wealthy Hebrews to be there before the Armageddon crisis be reached. Indeed we understand that "Jacob's trouble" in the Holy Land will come at the very close of Armageddon. Then Messiah's Kingdom will begin to be manifested. Thenceforth Israel in the land of promise will gradually rise from the ashes of the past to the grandeur of prophecy. Through its Divinely appointed princes Messiah's Kingdom, all-powerful but invisible, will begin to roll away the curse and to lift up mankind.

Pimpily? Well, Don't Be!

People Notice It—Drive Them Off With Olive Tablets.

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pimples will vanish after you have taken the tablets a few nights. Nothing ever cleansed the blood, the bowels and the liver like Olive Tablets.

Olive Tablets are the only successful substitute for calomel—they oil the bowels; there's never any sickness or pain after taking them.

Olive Tablets do that calomel does and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and startling. No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with the dark brown taste, a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are made of pure vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

Dr. Edwards speaks of many among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result.

Try them. Take one nightly for a week. Then look at yourself in the glass and see how you feel. 10c and 50c per box.

BERT O. HORTON

The best interests of Licking county's legal business will be served by the election of Mr. Bert O. Horton, the democratic candidate for Clerk of the Courts by a good round majority. Mr. Horton's thorough qualification and well known integrity were understood by the voters at the primary election last May and his popularity as a candidate has been further demonstrated during the progress of the campaign. That the business of the Clerk's office will be conducted in a manner highly satisfactory to all the people is an accepted fact by all who are familiar with his abilities. There is to more important office in the Court House than that of Clerk of the Courts and Mr. Horton will be found the right man in the right place when he is elected. (adv.)

Treasurer of Licking County, Ohio.

tioned for a further revealing of God's wonderful love for mankind by the salvation of hundreds of souls ere the meetings should close, prepared the minds of the audience for the messages that were to be carried to them by Attorney A. S. Mitchell and Rev. C. L. Sparks regarding the free will offering to Dr. Lyon.

"We have a treat for you this morning," declared Mr. Mitchell, and the audience smiled its appreciation, for it knew full well the meaning of his words. "We are going to give you the liberty of expressing your appreciation of the great campaign that has been carried forward for

A TRUE REFORMATION.

A true reformation has its seat in the hearts of men. In the six weeks past Newark has seen reform in thousands of hearts. Dr. Lyon's messages have reached many who have never heard his voice. The Newark Advocate has done a great work through its most excellent reports of the meetings. FRANK L. JOHNSON, Secretary Y. M. C. A.

the salvation of individual souls, for the spiritual revival in the various churches, and for the placing of this community upon a higher moral and spiritual plane." Mr. Mitchell then called on Dr. Sparks to say a few words regarding the work of the Lyon party during the campaign.

Many Local Revivals.

Dr. Sparks preceded his plea for a large free will offering for Dr. Lyon by a few announcements regarding the work now planned for the continuance of the revival movement throughout the city. Several churches will commence revival meetings in their own buildings to-night (Monday), among these being the East Main Street M. E., the United Brethren and the North End Christian Union congregations. The First Presbyterian, the Woodside Presbyterian, the Central Church of Christ, the First Methodist Episcopal, the West Main Street M. E. church, the Fifth Street Baptist church, Trinity Lutheran and the Plymouth and First Congregational churches will inaugurate individual revivals on Wednesday evening of this week. It was also announced that plans are being carried out for the organization of neighborhood prayer meeting circles, for the continuation of the united efforts along this line, that have been so distinct a factor in the success of the Newark campaign.

The Methodist pastor devoted considerable time in bringing before his audience the value of the work of each member of the Lyon party. In commencing his remarks, he told of receiving a letter from Dr. Lyon at a time when Newark was in the throes of a great moral turmoil. "This little man that we have learned to know so well and to love so dearly," said the speaker, "wrote me a letter commending me for the activities of those who stood for what they thought was righteousness in those strenuous days, and said that there was no spot on the face of the earth that he would more love to labor in than this city."

"All of those who have engaged in this work were just as earnest in their solicitations to have him come to this city as I. He has come to you, and you know the results that follow. He brought with him a marvelous combination. This work is, in a stronger sense than I have ever witnessed, team work. It doesn't belong to one man, but to the entire party—the credit for this work. What a tower of strength this company of workers have been in this city. From the man who has taken charge of the tabernacle—why, that splendid man, with that full-moon face, benign and gentle and pleasing and easily to be treated and hard to ruffle—Fred has gone about here doing his work in a masterful way, and he has the blessing and the benediction of this great throng of people."

Bald-Headed Brother. "And then there is this bald-headed brother," added the speaker, and for a few moments his voice was drowned in the laughter that welled up from the great audience as they smiled their appreciation of Prof. Ralph Mitchell. "This man that has had charge of this music—with that face that reminds you of the sanctified countenance of St. John until something vexes him, and immediately it is transformed into a Julius Caesar. But that man is a genius, and we are proud of him. We have heard them all. We know about Rhoades, Exell and Alexander and all the rest, but we are here to say that he stands at the head of the list of men in his work, and he will go out of this campaign with the benediction and blessing of 25,000 people, some of whom perhaps have never looked into his piercing eyes.

"And then, others have come into *****

EXPRESS APPRECIATION.

Editor Advocate: We, the United Brethren people, having passed through the great Lyon campaign of union services in this city, do not hesitate to speak of this great religious awakening in the most favorable terms in expressing our appreciation of the splendid work done by Dr. Lyon and his co-workers, in connection with the consecrated energy on the part of Christian laborers in Newark and vicinity. We feel under special obligations to extend our thanks to the Advocate for the loyal service rendered by it in sending through the columns of its daily papers the glad tidings of joy.

G. W. TYLER, Pastor.

this work. Why, I cannot begin to express my appreciation of this beautiful singer, Mrs. Powell. She reminds me constantly of traditions concerning Jenny Lind. She has, with that nightingale voice, thrilled us, subdued us, brought many to repentance, and besides using that voice from this pulpit, she has shown that rare skill that belongs only to a few—the rare skill of persuasiveness in personal work, and we crown her as 'queen among us.'

"And then her co-laborer, Mrs. Allison, unfolding the word of God in a most marked and remarkable way, and showing a rare culture and consecration that you witness only once in a lifetime. Why, if she had a pastorate and were looking for an assistant, I would apply for the place.

And Then She Blushed.

"I think that in some aspects of the work, the most difficult position to fill has been filled by this young man who has been manipulating these keys in a way that is astonishing to me. The very first night that these meetings began, I simply was charmed for a little time to see how it was possible for the human mind to dictate to the fingers to work like Brother Fath works. And then, don't forget this little girl over here," added Dr. Sparks, as he turned to Miss Julia Sells, who has assisted in the meetings as pianist with Mr. Fath, and who, by her splendid personality, has made many friends and ardent admirers. "If she is not a genius, almost superhuman in the beginning of this career, I am at fault in my judgment. This whole town is a debtor to this little girl at my left."

"And then there comes that brother that had the great sense to quit being a lawyer and began to be a preacher, and I don't know that I have met a man anywhere that has brought me nearer to him than Brother Holloway. I wish they wouldn't call him 'Judge.' He is out of the business and is in a better business. He has shown, without any perceptible friction, that rare judgment, that unusual consecration in his task that can scarcely be equaled in all this world. He has gone to the shops and mingled with these men, in their admiration and their hearts. Many of them have 'hit the trail' and are now out and out for God's cause because Brother Holloway spoke to them in the shops. He has an infinite patience about it all, and when patience was strained and those eyes flashed a little, he might soon cooled off when he got into the presence of that wife of his. Brother Holloway is marvellously blessed in ballast and he carries it around with him. You know, we all know, that a little of that is needed by all of us. Once in a while I write a letter under certain conditions, and then I turn it over to my wife to read, and she will say, 'You'd better not mail it until tomorrow,' and then I don't mail it at all.

Great Moral Atmosphere.

"Now, then, with it all, Dr. Lyon comes to preach the gospel. I had the greatest anticipations of what would take place in Newark under those conditions, but as I said to Brother Warner a little while ago, in some aspects of this work, it has exceeded my greatest anticipation. In that the moral temper and temperament of this city has been absolutely revolutionized in six weeks. More than we can dream, this city now has a religious temperament, and an atmosphere that is little less than heaven, taking into consideration the atmosphere that some of us have been breathing for years.

"If not a convert had been registered for Jesus Christ, and nothing else had been done, with this city than coming to a spiritual impulse, that would be sufficient for all that we have put in it.

"And that has come about by the preaching of a pure gospel," claimed Dr. Sparks. "The standard has been high. If Dr. Lyon leans any way he leans a little backward. He sets up a standard that is only the new testament standard. He doesn't know what 'white-wash' is. There has been no white-wash in this campaign. He has not been building on the sands. He has been under the dominion of a great spirit that has in it all the elements that belong to a real transformation of the community."

"Let us thank God, brethren, that the old flag has never touched the ground. The gospel has been preached in great boldness and great plainness, and the difference between the preaching you have been hearing and the preaching that you sometimes heard—when you didn't attend the First M. E. church, of course—is the difference between the abstract and the concrete. Dr. Lyon has been 'concretizing' the gospel of Jesus Christ, and for that reason he has been clubbing me about every night.

After Lyon's Share. "Now, we are after the 'Lyon's share,'" explained the Methodist pastor, provoking the laughter of his audience and their hearty applause. "We want to show our appreciation of a transformed community, of the salvation of thousands of souls, of the building anew of the churches of Jesus Christ, the creating of a new commercial standard, the creating of a new social standard, the reformation of multitudes of men. We are going to show our appreciation by digging down to our pockets and shelling out to our utmost this morning, and we are not going to be ashamed of it in the end. We are not going to disgrace Newark by a meagre response, but just in the proportion of the blessings that we have received from the hands of God under these men, we are going to respond to Brother Mitchell's directions this morning—we are going to lay on God's altar, not for a man but for the cause in which he is laboring, a splendid offering, that shall make us glad that we are living in Newark—which we very greatly prefer to heaven!"

The meeting was then taken in charge by Attorney A. S. Mitchell, who explained the plan of the collection. Cards were passed around for the registering of subscriptions, the sums ranging from $50 down to $1. "We must bear in mind, advised the local man, "that Dr. Lyon does not belong to any bureau whatever, as has been suggested by some of the lying people about this city. We must bear in mind that he has come to us saying that he would work for six weeks and would take and be satisfied with what we saw fit to give him. I am frank to say that I belong to a profession that doesn't work just that way.

"We're here for business and we are going to get down to it right away," declared the president of the trading organization of Christian men of the city. "We are going to get through in sufficient time to have a spiritual uplift on account of the living and the great message of the gospel that Dr. Lyon will give to us at the close of this contribution. As God has blessed you and your family, and the individual friends in whom you have been interested, it is your duty and your privilege, as a part of your consecration, that you be willing to let loose of a little bit of that which belongs to the physical and temporal, and to give way to the blessing that is in store for you in God's kingdom."

No responses came to Mr. Mitchell's call for contributions of $500, $400, $300 or $100, and it was not until the $50 mark was reached that the first donation was recorded. This was from C. C. Jones, who was promptly followed in the giving of this sum by Mrs. Norpell and Dr. Essington and W. C. Swisher and wife. The contributions came slowly until a trifle over $1,300 had been reached, when Prof. Ralph Mitchell mounted the platform and asked permission to say a few words.

Was Under Great Expense.

He explained to the audience the great expense under which Dr. Lyon maintains his campaigns, declaring that the evangelist's portion of the expense totaled over $1,100, and that if they desired to be known as willing to give of their substance in appreciation of the blessings that had been given to them, they would "have to get busy and give more." This appeal had the desired effect and a number who had given smaller contributions took advantage of the opportunity of showing their real spirit by doubling, and in some cases, even trebling their original offerings. Exclusive of the $2 and $1 offerings, which were not counted during the morning service, a total of $3,152 was subscribed.

The evangelist had not appeared in the tabernacle during the collection of the offering, and knew nothing of the amount that had been secured for him. His face did not show any traces of worry, however, for Dr. Lyon throughout the campaign manifested more interest in the saving of souls and the bringing of the lost into the kingdom of God than he has for any monetary compensation that might be given him. His face was wreathed in smiles as he greeted the splendid audience, and in view of the lateness of the hour—for the collection had taken until nearly twelve o'clock—he promised to make his sermon of such a nature that it would be like cutting off any head and a caboose tacked on. In the following fifty minutes he gave an inspiring message that brought nearly four score of souls to a recognition of their utter helplessness without an acceptance of Jesus Christ.

Before assuming the trend of his discourse for the morning, the evangelist urged all the members of churches outside Newark to transfer their church letters to this city, in order that they might reap the benefits of active service in Christian work.

"I want to thank you for your gifts," the evangelist said. "I don't know what they are, but I want to thank you anyway. As I said in the beginning, I was here primarily to preach the gospel. I did not come here to please the people of Newark, but to please the Lord Jesus Christ, whose I am and whom I serve. I would rather have the good will than the ill will of every person in this community, but I do want first to be obedient unto the Lord. You may be sure that wherever we will go we will not forget these many expressions of kindness you have shown us. We will be interested in everything that you will say, and nothing will rejoice us any more than to hear of your progress in the kingdom of God."

"I want to talk to you this morning upon the will of God," he continued, as he announced as his text, Psalms 40:7 and Matthew 7:21. "I delight to do thy will, O my God," and "Not every one that saith unto me, 'Lord, Lord,' shall enter into the kingdom of heaven but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven."

Lordship in Reality.

In these words Jesus emphasizes that his Lordship must be not a matter of mere theory but of reality, of sincerity and of truth. Every stream that has brought joy and blessing into this old world has had its source in that fountain of obedience of God, and every stream that had brought blight and pain, as had its source in that other fountain of disobedience of God.

"I would have liked to have made an excursion today into the realms of psychology, to study with you what department of the human life it is that keeps a man from God. Is it intellect, the power of reason or thinking? The trouble with people is not that they do not know enough—the vast majority of people don't do as well as they know. It is not a lack of intellect, neither is it lack of emotion, for all the finest feelings, all the sweetest sensibilities of the soul are ranged unanimously in support of the Christian life. Take music, art, literature—they are all handmaidens of religion."

"If it is not the intellect or emotions, is it the memory that keeps the life from God? No, for as you pass up and down through the chambers and corridors of your soul, you mark that the experiences that have caused you permanent joy have been in some way connected with the Christian life, and the experiences that have caused you shame and blight, permanent sorrow, have in some way been connected with sin, with disobedience of God."

"If we are going to liken our life to a locomotive, we would liken the intellect to machinery, the memory to the fuel in the tender, we would liken the emotions to the fuel beneath the boiler. There is another element, it is the will—the engineer in the cab that has his hand on the lever, who is going to allow the train to drag down grade to the ditch or else, if the engineer understands his business and is what he ought to be, he will drive that train onward to its destination. So, the great secret of success or failure of life is not in the intellect or emotions or in the memory, but in the will itself.

Intellect Radiates Faith. "The center of faith is not in the intellect. It is in the soul, and if the soul is weak or diseased, impotent, ineffective, the life must be a failure. That is, to make success in life, there must be the factor of decision, of character. The same elements that would make a man weak and powerless in politics, in business, in society, in decision, will make that man also a failure in religion. This was the character of Shakespeare's Hamlet, in whom the poet almost outdid himself in delineating a life of strong intellect, of fine feelings and emotions, and yet, as he himself analyzed his character, he 'lost the name of action.'"

"This was the fatal weakness in that president of the United States, J. Buchanan. Buchanan was not a traitor as some people try to make out. With all his faults, I believe, like many other men he had good intentions, but the streets of hell are paved with these. He sat there in the executive chair when the enemies of the nation were plotting against this government, when they were seizing forts and arsenals, and J. Buchanan said, 'I can't do anything. I can't. I can't.' If we had in the presidential chair an Andrew Jackson or a Theodore Roosevelt, who would have seen that the laws were enforced, we wouldn't have had any Civil War. What we need all over this country is men that not only mean well, but behind their good intentions they have a strong backbone. Andrew Jackson would have solved the problem of the Civil War and served it right.

"So it was with George B. McClellan, a good general, graduated at the head of his class at West Point, beloved by his soldiers. He was a man of splendid parts, a very old soldier with a beard, and yet he sat in front of those guns with the country and the president were urging him on to capture Richmond and said, 'I can't. I can't.'"

Lacked Decisive Power.

"What was the weakness? The lack of decision and character of will power. Now, I know there are two types of decisions. There is the commercial and there is the judicial—one typified by the banker and the other by the judge. A banker is called upon to make decisions quickly upon this point or that point, probably a hundred times a day. The judge, on the other hand, comes to his decision slowly, deliberately, but I want you to mark that there is one element exactly alike in these two men. In each case, when the man is convinced what he ought to do, be he banker or be he judge, he does it! He can't be true to his business sense and do anything else.

"Now the type of the one case would be such a man as Bacon, the philosopher. Bacon always used the deductive system of Aristotle, Plato and Socrates. Gradually there dawned upon his mind the inductive system. He knew that if he would champion the new philosophy, it would be in the teeth of great ridicule. And yet, when he was convinced it was right, he did champion it. A case of the other type would be such a man as Wendell Phillips, that brilliant, talented young lawyer of Boston. One day some years before the Civil War, a fellow lawyer of Boston said to him, 'Say, Phillips, let's go out riding with a couple of young lady friends of mine this afternoon.'

Phillips agreed, related the evangelist, and the friend explained, before they left, that the young lady with whom Phillips was to spend the afternoon, was a very ardent abolitionist. "If you are not careful she'll make an abolitionist out of you," laughed the friend but Phillips merely replied, 'No danger. My mind is made up on that subject.'

"But, sure enough, that young lady began to put forth arguments so earnestly and so logically did she plead her cause, that when that carriage ride was over, and Wendell Phillips grasped the hand of one who henceforth was to stand among the most ardent advocates of human liberty."

"Mark you, the one element was alike. One came to his decision quickly, and the other slowly. But in each case, when the man was convinced of what he ought to do, he did it."

"You can't be true to yourself, you would be a traitor to your conscience and character if you did anything else," Emerson said. "Do what you believe is right today, even if it is absolutely contrary to everything you have ever done." It is, he said, the evidence of a dwarfed, shriveled mind to try to make every act of today tally with that of yesterday. Rather say with Oliver Wendell Holmes, 'Build thou more stately mansions, O my Soul.'

"There are many that seem to think that in becoming Christians they have gone to give up their wills. Not so. Some parents try to break a child's will. Develop in your children just as strong a will as you can. What you want to do is not to destroy the will, but direct the will. God doesn't want us to have passive wills. He wants us to have active wills. As Tennyson says in his In Memoriam, 'Our wills are ours, we know not how; our wills are ours to make them Thine.'

A Real Man's Job.

"It takes not a weakling, it takes a life of strength and character to be a Christian. One reason why so many in this community are drifting down to doom and damnation is not so much on account of an enthusiastic support of vice, but on account of a lack of decision of character."

"Oh, that we might have the spirit of Saul of Tarsus on he Damascus road. Saul got a vision of what he ought to be. I do not care whether that was a subjective or an objective light, but I am sure that he was there convinced, just as you are, that Jesus Christ was the Son of God. What did He do? Now, the puny, shriveled weakling would have said, 'Well, it isn't popular here in Judea to be a Nazarene on the side of Jesus, and so

REAL TASK NOW COMES.

"The great union evangelistic campaign is ended, so far as Dr. Lyon and his party are concerned," said Rev. Charles Laughlin, pastor of the East Main Street M. E. church and chairman of the executive committee of the Lyon campaign, this morning. "The work of the pastors and individual churches has just begun. The gathering and establishing of these hundreds of new converts into the various churches, to say nothing of the hundreds in our city who have not yet accepted Jesus Christ as their Lord and Master, is a gigantic task and can only be accomplished by a consecrated ministry and a loyal church."

"The press of the city has placed us under great obligations for the splendid manner in which it has reported the sermons day after day for six weeks, making it possible for thousands to get the benefit of the sermon who were not able to hear the sermons to get the benefit of them. The Advocate has been especially enthusiastic and deserves the commendation of all Christian people."

I'll just keep quiet.

But Paul had true character. He knelt right there and said, 'Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?' And afterwards, he could say with joy, 'Oh, King, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision.' "Well, I hear some one say, 'that is good clear logic. I believe that is exactly right, that success consists in finding out what the will of God is and then doing it. But how can I know what the will of God for my life really is?' Drummond says somewhere, 'There are two ways of learning, one by study and the other by obedience, and the second is by far the greater way.'

Orders to the Deserving.

"Suppose you were a colonel of a regiment in war. You wouldn't give commands and orders to every one in that community. To whom would you give instructions? You say, naturally to those that have held up their hands and said, 'I will obey that commander; I'll go where he wants me to go. You wouldn't waste your time in giving instructions to this one or the other one who would take his own pleasure about obeying you. You would give your instructions only to those who have declared their allegiance. So it is in the kingdom of God."

"How will you get spiritual knowledge? Surrender your will to God. If you really believe in Jesus Christ you will believe that he has a plan for your life that is a better plan than you can plan for yourself. If you really believe in God and His Son, what will be the result? You will say with the Psalmist, 'I delight to do thy will, O my God, for the test of faith is obedience.'

"Jesus said, 'Why callest thou me Lord, Lord, and doest not the things that I say?'

"Again, doing God's will is essential for peace. Why is it that we have so many in these days suffering from hysteria, from wear and worry and fretfulness, broken down from nervous prostration? In the large majority of cases it is due to disobedience of God. They are trying to row their boats up-stream, contrary to God's currents. They are trying to split the timbers crosswise of the grain. Noah walked with God, therefore God honored him. When God says, 'Go this way, and the soul says, 'No, do it; I'll go that way,' then there comes your cross. You make your will parallel to God's will, and there is no cross."

Obedience Brings Peace.

"Friends, the pathway of obedience is the pathway of peace. There are many that are willing to obey God in some things, but in other things they want to do as they please. There are so many people that are willing to serve God if they can do it according to their own ideas. There are only two bases for life, the self basis and the Christ basis. The ungodly man, the man who is lost and doomed to perdition, that man is seeking merely to please himself; the godly man, the saved man, the life that is fixed with Christ in God, who is sure of salvation, is the man that is living only to please Jesus Christ. To which class do you belong?

"A man says, 'Yes, I want to be a lic confession.' But what will please Jesus, you ask? 'Oh, it would please Jesus to have me walk down the aisle, but I don't want to do it,' he says. Perhaps you are a Christian, but not according to God's will. You aren't doing what He says will please Him. "Again, doing God's will is essential for spiritual effectiveness," urged the evangelist, as he suggested a case where an office stenographer would write a number of letters and sign her employer's name to them, without his authority. "She probably has done more harm than good. She has done the work of her employer, but she has not done the will of her employer," declared the speaker.

"There are many people in the church just like that. They are willing to work if they can work according to their own methods. The dear women will come and get up a bazaar and supper, and bluster their soft hands, and the men will haul brick or stone and work after hours in hammering nails, both kinds, and putting down carpets—they will do anything but be religious. A great many people in these days are mistaking perspiration for inspiration. It isn't work, work, work, that we want to emphasize; it's will, will, will!"

The Valuable Man.

"Let me ask you, business men, who is the most valuable man in your employ? Is it the one with the most talent? You say no, that it is the man who will do what you want him to do. A great employer of men said recently, 'The great difficulty is in getting men that will work according to our plans. Men want to follow their own ideas. When I can get an employee who will take as much interest in my business as I do, and will evidence equal ability, I am doubling my own effectiveness.'

"Right here, friends, we have the secret of business success. If I had every young man in this city here, I believe I could give him the key to a successful business career. Listen, find out what your employer wants you to do and then do it. Right here we have the key also to spiritual success. Find out what Jesus Christ would have you do, and then do it. Jesus gives us the secret of His own career. Listen, he says, 'I came down from heaven, not to do my will, but the will of Him that sent me.'

"But the last word,—obedience to God is essential, not only for the spiritual knowledge, for spiritual effectiveness, but also for salvation itself. Do you not see, friends, that this old earth is God's testing ground. He has given to each one of us a faculty of choice to become free moral agents, to decide for ourselves, and now God is finding out who is willing to do His will. One can't become a citizen of the kingdom of Great Britain without taking King George as his king. Do you suppose you can enter into the kingdom of heaven, which is the kingdom of God, which is the kingdom of Christ, upon any lesser, easier terms than to accept Him as king of that kingdom, as your personal Lord and Master?"

"My friends, you may have done everything else, you may have joined every lodge and every church in Christendom, you may have gone through all the rites and ritual, and forms and ceremonies,—you may have been baptized with, in or under water fresh from the holy river Jordan, you may even give away every dollar you have and your body to be burned, but Jesus Christ says, 'Not every one that saith Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven. Only those who definitely and unconditionally surrender their lives to do the will of God are entitled to that salvation.'

Must Make a Decision.

"Now, my friends, that is a very serious thing to do. I do not know what God has in store for you. The important thing about your life is not that you do this or that, or live in this place or the other,—the one thing that is of supreme, of infinite, of eternal moment is that each one of us must decide definitely, henceforth to do the will of Jesus Christ. I never supposed that God would take me out of my chosen profession of the law and politics to go into a line of work that I abhorred above everything else on earth,—the ministry."

The speaker then told of his securing a pastorate and finding congenial friends there, and then of his 'call' to go into evangelistic work, a branch of the ministry that he was not in sympathy with, and of the final subjugation of his will by that of his Master.

"Friends, if there is anything on earth I have said to God that I would not do, I have had to do just that thing before I got peace and blessing and assurance. Don't try to make terms with God. Don't try to see how little you can do for Jesus, but rather see how much you can do. Live to please Him. "I want to give you fair warning that if you society women come out as Christians, I don't mean simply church members, for God knows there are many church members that have no more real hopes of heaven than have the very devil in hell. If you business men make Christ king, to do his will in business, in politics, in society and in finance, I want to tell you that you are going to have hardships, you are going to have trials, persecutions—there has to be more martyrdom if this old world is to be won for Jesus Christ—but hear me:

"If in times of war, when the nation is in danger, men will be willing to turn their backs on financial profit, upon ease, upon worldly honor, upon pleasure, and for the sake of their nation and their flag will sacrifice their money, their time, health and strength, for their country—what ought you and I do for Jesus Christ, the prince imperial of heaven?"

Honor the Flag.

In the story of the siege of Fort Wagner by the negro regiment during the Civil War, under the command of Robert Gould Shaw, of Boston, Dr. Lyon found splendid emphasis of the point that his sermon was intended to carry. Shaw gave up social position, a newly-made bride, family position, wealth—all to lead a thousand negroes against the southern rebels. In the stealthy march toward Ft. Wagner they were met by two volleys from the enemy's guns, which completely wiped the regiment from the roll of the army. Shaw, himself, however, managed to gain to parapets of the fort, and fell over dead, in the enemy's camp. They refused to give up the body to the Union officers, sending back in reply to the message of temporary truce, the insolent retort, 'Let the damned Yankee be buried with his niggers.'

"That night, related Dr. Lyon, 'Sergeant Carney, the color sergeant of that regiment, who had carried the regimental flag, although wounded in both limbs and his arms, grasped that flag and tucked it within his blue blouse. That night he crawled out from beneath the heap of wounded and dead comrades, and by some means got through the Confederate lines and into the northern camp. The Union soldiers gathered about him, and this color sergeant, weak with loss of blood, pulled out that blood-stained regimental flag from his blouse and held it aloft on his face, he held it up and cried, 'Boys, see nebbber touched de ground.'"

Why Not for Christ?

"Hear me, friends," pleaded the evangelist in closing. "If a man will do that much for his flag and for his country, what ought you and I to do for Jesus Christ, the Son of God, who suffered and died for us on Calvary? If you really believe in Jesus Christ, you will say this morning, 'I will obey Jesus,—you will say with the psalmist, 'I will delight to do thy will, O my God.' Remember, 'not every one that saith Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom, but he that doeth the will of my Father, which is in heaven.'"

In spite of the lateness of the hour when Dr. Lyon finished his sermon, there were few who did not remain for the after-meeting, and the enthusiasm of those who had already accepted Christ led to the bringing of over three-score to the foot of the Cross, seeking the salvation that is alone offered by the acceptance of the personal Savior? It was half past one before the crowd filed out of the tabernacle—leaving only an hour and a half between that time and the afternoon service. Many remained in the tabernacle, having brought luncheon with them, and these had the advantage of front seats for the succeeding services. It was noted that several small delegations were present from surrounding country points, the visitors from Alexandria proving especially active, not only in the singing of the gospel hymns and the bringing of souls into the kingdom, but also in their contributions to the free will offering for Dr. Lyon. The W. C. T. U. from that point ordered a joint subscription of $5 for the offering fund.

MANY ENTERED THE OPEN DOOR

Probably no meeting of the entire campaign showed such cosmopolitan interest in the gospel of Jesus Christ as that held in the tabernacle yesterday afternoon, when Dr. Lyon delivered a profound discussion of "The Open Door," a sermon which might be termed a preface to his master-offering, "The Closed Door," which he reserves for the final service. Men and women employed in the various factories and stores, who were unable to attend the morning meetings, joined in the afternoon meeting and found much of spiritual value in the remarkable discourse that the evangelist presented to them. A number of delegations from various country villages were also present during the afternoon, while throughout the congregation sat little groups of the High school students who have been so vitally interested in the work of the Lyon party, and who have probably been influenced by the efforts of the evangelist in a degree that is practically immeasurable, so great it is. These delegations were thoroughly imbued with the revival spirit and sang the opening songs under the direction of Prof. A. S. Mitchell and the mammoth chorus choir with an earnestness that fairly shook the building. Prof. Mitchell's eyes glowed as he listened to the splendid congregation singing, and was forced to remark that "it beat anything that had ever happened in the tabernacle." Of course this had the effect of renewing the zeal of the singers, and the five thousand or more persons lent their full interpretation to the good old gospel hymns, "Revive Us Again," "Yes, I'll Sing the Wondrous Story," "Shall We Gather at the River."

At the close of an eloquent and reverent prayer by Rev. Clavin Hazlett of the First Presbyterian church, Attorney A. S. Mitchell took charge of the meeting and asked those who had attended during the morning to so signify. He then asked the rest to stand to their feet—and when the disturbance had quieted, he whimsically remarked, "There seems to be more of you than there were of us, so we'll get busy." He then explained the plan of the free will offering for Dr. Lyon, and asked that the ushers see that everyone be supplied with a subscription card. The collection for the afternoon proved a substantial addition to the splendid sum collected at the morning service, a number of early contributors taking advantage of the opportunity to raise their subscriptions to greater sums.

Mrs. Powell at Her Best.

Mrs. Powell's solo for the afternoon service was "I Am Happy in Him," a number which she has rendered several times during the campaign, and always with the most pleasing results. Her happiness in the Master is undeniably sweet and is seemingly transfused into her very singing, giving a rare interpretation to the simplest theme possible.

Dr. Lyon personally read the scripture lesson for the afternoon, John 10:1-9, and later announced that his text for the afternoon was to be a two-fold one, Rev. 2:8, "Benedict, I have set before thee an open door," and John 10:9, "I am the door; by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture."

"It may be hard for some of you to realize the conflicting emotions that one has when 'standing before people on the last day of a campaign like this—emotions of joy on account of what has been achieved, on account of those who have taken the stand for Christ, and sorrow for those who have not yet accepted the Saviour. This campaign has been, in many ways, a record breaker in my ministry. I have remained a week longer here than I have in any other place in the 13 years of my evangelistic work. I have preached about one-sixth more sermons than ever before in my life. More than 2,500 have come to the front, the largest number, by far the largest number, of any evangelistic campaign that I have ever been in. I am sure that personally I rejoice with you in these blessings, but along with that, I am sad because there are still so many outside the kingdom of heaven, and I feel as you Christian workers do, that a ning of your business life. Some can remember when you began married life, and entered the matrimonial door. "It is said that the honor of America is that the doors of this nation always swing inward, with a welcome for people of other lands. So there must be a beginning of the national life. If one has been a citizen of England, France, Germany or Spain before he can enjoy the rights of citizenship here, he must be naturalized. Just as there is a definite beginning of army life when a soldier enrolls, the beginning of civil life when he is naturalized, of matrimonial life when he is married—so there must be a beginning of the Christian life.

There are some that don't seem to know whether they are saved or whether they are not saved. If you do not know you are saved, you must put it down for sure that you are not, that you have not entered the door. "It is also the symbol of the connection of the outside with the inside," continued the speaker. "I am somewhat of a stranger in your city, but I know in the country where I live. If people want to get into a house, they usually enter the door. If you would see a man at midnight with a great bar trying to pry open the second story window of a home, you would imply that he was a thief. Jesus uses exactly that figure—that a great many in the present day are trying to get into the kingdom of God some other way.

"One thinks he will get in by education. I am not an ordinary man," he says. "I am a smart man and certainly God would not leave me out. Another thinks he will get in on account of his family connections, that he came from a Christian home. Another thinks he will get in because of his money. Others think they are going to get in because they have been living an honest life. No amount of worldly honors can save the soul. There are others trying to enter in by their good works. Friend, it is a great thing to do good works, but no amount of good works can save your soul. Others, because they have joined a lodge and they say they are all right, the crowd will turn out to the funeral—therefore I am going to be saved. My friend, if you are trusting in that for salvation you are going to hell as sure as the sun will rise tomorrow morning. Others think because they have joined a church or some other religious organization, that fact will save them. You might do all of these things, and yet be lost. There is none other name under heaven by which ye can be saved but by the acceptance of Jesus Christ.

There's Only One Way. "Jesus said, 'I am the Way, the Truth and the Light. No man cometh unto the Father but by Me.' He says, 'I am the Door.' " "Friend, if you are trusting to any other plan or means of gaining heaven but through Jesus Christ, the crucified and risen Son of God, you are building your hopes on the sand. This door is broad enough, it is easy enough to enter, it is accessible for every one who is willing to repent of his sins and yield his heart to God.

"The door is a symbol of separation. It shuts out the outside from the inside. Don't you let anyone make you believe that it is a matter of very small concern whether you are on the inside of the kingdom of heaven or on the outside. These two conditions are as far apart as the poles of the universe. "Often on a dark winter night I have gone along the streets of a strange city and I have looked into the houses through uncurtained windows, and have seen the family within, maybe playing games, someone playing and another singing at the piano, one reading and the other listening—enjoying themselves in the brightness and warmth of that home, and then I have contrasted that enjoyable condition with the darkness and gloom without, and I have said 'So it is with the kingdom of heaven! And the door, Jesus Christ, is the separation. You cannot stand in the doorway. You are either on the inside or the outside.

"Notice what Jesus says—'By Me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and he shall go in and out, and find pasture.' Notice the three statements, in the evidence of His love for us.

Offers Is Nourishment. "First, he shall find pasture, nourishment for the life that received Christ. Just the same as the right and normal condition for a tree is to have its roots in the soil, the healthy condition of a human soul is to be in vital relationship with Jesus Christ. The ungodly life is the abnormal life. It is the diseased life. Someone says, 'I am afraid I cannot live the right kind of a life if I am a Christian.' It's certain that you can't unless you are a Christian.

"There is also liberty. You can go in or you can go out. So many seem to think that if they become Christians their lives are going to be narrow, hampered and limited. Absolutely the reverse.

"God wants to make your life a free life. The only truly free person on this earth is the Christian." Dr. Lyon traced the evidence of His love, the enthusiasm of the young men who yearly attend the Y. M. C. A. and D. M. B. conferences at Lake Geneva, Wis., where they put the same earnestness and good nature into their Christian work that they put in their work on the athletic field.

"Jesus says, 'If by me you enter the door into the kingdom of heaven, you are going to go in and out.' But he also says, 'By Me, if any man enter, he shall be saved.' There is safety. Physical death is sad. Yes, but there is something infinitely sadder than that—it is the life that is spiritually lost, spiritually dead. 'Fear not who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell,' Christ tells us.

"Christ says, 'Behold, I have set before them an open door. The open door is a symbol of opportunity. First of all, the good news for you. Is there one here who has not been followed by the wild beasts of passion, appetite, of temptation. There is some man here who has been having a battle against the liquor habit, someone against some other temptation. If you try to fight that appetite alone, you are going to be beaten—it will master you. But here is the good news. If today you will enter the open door and receive Jesus, the mighty Son of God, who rose from the dead—receive Him into your heart, you have behind you all the might of omnipotence to give you victory over your enemies. You can then say, 'Thank God I'm saved,' said Dr. Lyon, as he completed the story of a traveler in the Russian city who was followed by a pack of wolves, and who just gained the gates of the city in time to escape the famished fangs.

Get the Oak Idea. "Men and women, you need this salvation of Jesus Christ not only for the world beyond, but for this world, right here and now. Not only is it an open door for salvation, but also an open door for development. You can't grow an oak tree in a day. You can grow a mushroom or a toad-stool during the night, but it is simply a mushroom or a toad-stool. My controversy with most people is that they have merely the mushroom idea of life. I want you to get the oak tree idea—the development of Christian character. It has to be planted and it has to grow. You can't get the harvest before you plant the seed. Many people say, 'When I feel just right, I will accept Jesus.' My friends, you want your money before you have earned it. You want a harvest before there is a planter and cultivating. Begin the Christian life now, so that you may have these coming years to develop the strong, upright, honorable, godly Christian character.

"It is also an open door for service. I would today that whatever else you forget or remember, that you realize that too many people have a selfish conception of religion. They look on Christianity as a means of escaping hell and getting into heaven. I would rather have the realization that I am eternally lost than to have my conscience troubled with the knowledge that my indifference or neglect has been the cause of the loss of some other soul."

"I ask you to come out on the Lord's side now, that in the coming days and months and years, whether they be few or many, that your life will be exerted positively on the right side, to help somebody else to Christ. You have seen that beautiful old picture of the little rocky island projecting from the sea, and there, raised on that island is a cross, and a beautiful maiden clinging to that cross, and beneath the picture are the words, 'Simply to the Cross I Cling.' But there is another picture that surely charms us more. There is that same island projecting from the sea, and the waves are washing nearly to the foot of the cross, and there, on that beautiful maiden, with one arm clinging to the cross—down with the other she is reaching down and helping that fallen sister struggling between life and death.

"I would that now, as we are drawing to the close of this campaign, that you might get the right motive in your heart. Someone asks, 'Can't I be a Christian and be silent?' No, you can't, because your influence is negative. If you are going to follow Jesus, you are going to seek for opportunity to confess Him. Why? Because He commands it. Anything else? Yes—that your influence may help and encourage someone else.

"How great a cost it was that opened that door of salvation," exclaimed the speaker. "In Switzerland they said the spot where Arnold Winkelried received into his breast the spear of an Austrian spear, as he exclaimed, 'Make way for liberty!' I stood in Cambridge, Mass., under that old elm where it is said Washington took charge of the army of the Revolution, and as I looked back over the history of that awful, terrible winter at Valley Forge, I thought, 'What an awful cost! But when I look out on a land free from tyranny, I say, 'But it is worth the price!'"

The Cost of Freedom. "The terrible cost of the securing of freedom for the thousands of slaves under Lincoln's proclamation was presented in the evangelist's most ardent style as another example where the results achieved were well worth the cost. He also told of the sacrifice of a farmer's life while trying to stop a runaway team. His desire to stop the team was explained by the fact that in the back of the wagon, asleep, was his only son, a baby of three years. On the day of this hero-father's funeral, the friends looked at the face of the father and said, 'How sad that that man died! That life should go out, but when they saw that little fellow, strong and well, they said, 'The sacrifice was worth all it cost.'"

"Friends," pleaded the evangelist, "look away from the poor, earthly smelter that afternoon and see Jesus Christ struggling up Calvary's hill. See Him bearing that heavy load, staggering and sinking beneath that load. See them as they drive the nails into the bleeding hands and feet—and there hangs between earth and sky the best friend that man ever had. See the Roman soldier thrust his spear into the side of the Christ and there flows the water and the blood. Hear Him as He said, 'Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do.'"

"In a Sunday school class one day, when the lesson was about the crucifixion, a young lady, not a Christian, said, 'Do you mean to say that they murdered Jesus?' Jesus went to his death willingly to save us, replied the teacher. That beautiful girl's lips quivered and her eyes filled with tears, and she said, 'If Jesus loved me enough to die for me, I ought to love Him enough to live for Him.'"

"But, someone says, 'When I get old, when I am near the grave, then I am going to enter it at open door.' The word of God says, 'That door is open out it is turning on its hinges.' Very soon it is going to be shut. It cost a great deal to open that door, but when it is once shut, it is going to be shut to you forever.

Bring Christ Your Best. Dr. Lyon found in the incident of a girl's love for her crippled mother a splendid way to bring her to Christ. The girl was not a Christian, was indifferent and continued to neglect the great salvation that was offered her. Finally, a Christian friend met her one afternoon as she was about to take some beautiful, fragrant flowers to her invalid parent. The worker suggested that she take them to her own room for a few days, until they were withered and dried, until the petals all fell away—and then to give them to that mother as a token of her daughter's love. 'Do you mean to imply that I would so treat and insult my loving mother as to act that way,' cried the girl. 'Do you think I would be so mean and selfish as to keep all this beauty and fragrance to myself until the flowers are old and withered?'"

"Friends, isn't it just the way you are treating Jesus Christ, the Son of God, who loves you infinitely more than an earthly friend—you keep all the flowers of your life until you are old and withered and then you ask God to save your soul?"

"Yes, friends, sooner than you think, the end of life is going to come. Enter that door while you can," Dr. Lyon added, as he told of two deaths that occurred in his home town of Wheaton, Ill., on the same day. One was the funeral of the beautiful, Christian daughter of the pastor of a church in that town, and at that service many of her friends came out for Christ and the Christian life. At the other, the funeral of an infidel youth, no prayers were heard, the orchestra played only waltzes and airs and the body was carried to the graveyard without a word of mourning friends.

"Say, friends," demanded the evangelist, throwing all of his piercing personality into this mighty question, "is that the kind of a death you want? Is that the kind of a funeral you want to have? What could one of these goodly pastors say honestly about this? Could he say, 'There's one whose life and influence counted definitely and positively on the Lord's side? There's one that all of his friends know has gone to join the heavenly choir?'"

"Enter that open door now. Help someone else to find that great salvation. How many have entered through that open door and are glad that you have?" he asked in conclusion, and it was a veritable avalanche of witnesses that rose to their feet to manifest their love for Christ and take this opportunity of confessing Him before man. The personal work of the afternoon meeting was deeply inspiring, and before Dr. Lyon closed the service, a few minutes before six o'clock, over three score had come forward and taken Christ as their personal Saviour.

ROUSING MEETING BRINGS 65 CONVERTS

About a hundred students of Denison University made things lively at the tabernacle during the opening services on Saturday evening, the Baptists attending in a body, carrying their banners and giving their school yells. Their victory over Wittenberg College on the Denison football field during the afternoon ball game had kindled the spirit, and they entered with the utmost enthusiasm everything desired of them. The famous "Yea, Denison" yell was heard many times, while the "sky-rocket," which is without a superior in any other school in the country, was resorted to greet Dr. Lyon as he mounted the rostrum to meet the delegations. The Heisey employees were the only other visiting delegation, over 300 of the glass workers participating in the service. The Heisey delegation was the fourth to visit the tabernacle from that plant during the campaign, each delegation growing in size over the preceding one.

Forward, Christian Soldier! was used extensively during the opening service, as entirely in keeping with the rousing spirit of the evening. Prof. Mitchell practically confined his congregational singing to this song, the "Glorious Song," "Tell It Wherever You Go," and "Revive Us Again." The Denison boys expressed "The Church in the Wildwood" as their favorite, and did splendid work when asked to sing this number alone. The Granville delegation did not hesitate to show its appreciation of the choir, and gave "nine rahs" for the big chorus aggregation, as well as for Prof. Mitchell, Pianist Path, and finally, for the Newark High School.

Dr. James Wolfe, manager of the Denison Glee Club, proved one of the interesting surprises of the evening. Mr. Wolfe, rendered "Where He Leads, I'll Follow" with fine artistic appreciation, his voice carrying splendidly in the big tabernacle and his pleasing quality demanding the sincere commendation of everyone so fortunate as to hear him. One other musical surprise was offered the big congregation—the singing of a gospel hymn by five youngsters, all members of the same family. They were Masters Wayne and Harold Norris and their sisters, Helen, Lillian and Edith. The oldest of the children is but 12 years of age, while the youngest timidly counts but two years. The family seems very musical in the use of the violin and cornet. The children's rendition of "Heavenly Father," and one could not help admiring a new interpretation by their presence from the scriptural injunction, "Unless ye become as little children."

More Presentations. Rev. Thomas H. Warner of the First Congregational church, officiating at the presentation of the gifts by the choir to various members of the Lyon party on Friday night, had another similar task to perform on Saturday evening. In a brief, but most effective address, he defined as "un-Christian" the attitude of the campaign committee to the Robbing Piano Company of Columbus, who donated the piano which has been used by Mr. Path during the campaign. He then turned his attention to the splendid work that has been done by Mrs. Powell and Mrs. Allison throughout the last six weeks, particularly among the business girls of the city, and then presented two large packages, which he delivered to these ladies as a token of the appreciation of the business girls of Newark.

Was Naturally Warm. The packages were tied with blue and pink ribbon and the reverend gentleman expressed some hesitancy about opening them—quite natural, of course—but later investigation showed that the parcels contained beautiful shawls.

Mr. Warner retired amid the applause of the audience and was succeeded on the platform by Mr. A. W. Cole, a member of the East Main street M. E. church and one of the employees of the Heisey factories, who has worked unflinchingly at the shop meetings conducted by Judge Holloway. Mrs. A. W. Cole and Mrs. Powell might be successful. After fussing for several minutes with strings, Mr. Cole brought to light half a dozen glass andlesticks, of the "Diamond" H. manufacture, which he said would stand all over the earth as the best made. These were given, as a token of the esteem of the Heisey employees to the "Judge" and the two women of the Lyon party, each receiving a set of two.

Dr. Lyon's opening remarks showed his deep appreciation of the kindnesses being manifest toward his assistants. He told of the firm love that he had for every member of the party, notwithstanding the fact that with the exception of Prof. Mitchell, none of them had been engaged with him in evangelistic work before the Newark campaign began. "I want to bear testimony to you of the splendid Christian service that these assistants have rendered. Brother Mitchell and I were together all last year, and of course it goes without saying that I know him through and through, and I have learned to love him like a brother. My faith I have known before any of the others. He was our pianist when in Cincinnati a year and a half ago. He is going to fit his hands for more effective work. He has a splendid future musically and a future spiritually. I believe you will bear me out in this—that a large share of the credit for this glorious campaign is due to the splendid assistants we have had in this work. If you had had a preacher of any account, you would have had a great meeting here!" The cheers that followed his deprecation of his own work was sufficient testimony that he was alone in his estimation of his own services.

Franklin Baptist School. The Franklin Baptist school, the boys from Denison, thanking them for their presence, and recalling the splendid chapel services held at Granville during the early part of the campaign. He praised the Baptist institution highly, declaring that all over the country he had met Denison graduates, men holding responsible positions and bearing testimony to the fact that the school is doing splendid work in a splendid way, and is well worthy the attention of every student who intends to take a collegiate course. His welcome was also extended to the Heisey delegation, who, he said, had captured the record for attending the services in delegations more times and in larger numbers than any other factory with which he had become acquainted in his thirteen years of evangelistic work.

At the close of an impressive solo by Mrs. Grace Powell, which bore a message of the terrible solemnity of the judgment, and which was rendered with all the artistry of the singer, Dr. Lyon announced his theme for the evening, "The Great Refusal," and gave as his text, portions of the 21st and 22d verses of the 10th chapter of Mark. "Then Jesus beheld him, and said unto him, 'Come, make up the cross, and follow me.' And he was sad at that saying, and went away grieved, for he had great possessions."

"There are many things especially attractive to us in the character of this rich young ruler," said the evangelist. "First of all, because we are told that he came running. He was a young man of earnestness, of enthusiasm, of vigor and vitality. No wonder some people are not Christians. They are too infernally listless or lazy. I would rather have a man serve the devil, if he does a good job of it, than to have him cold blooded or thoughtless and indifferent, and not do anything. If you have an engine with steam in its boilers and it is headed the wrong way, you can put it on a big turntable and turn it around, but if you have a cold, dead engine, it is good for nothing but the scrap heap.

Always Mean Business. "I like to see a man come down to the front in a gospel meeting as if he meant it—just as I saw those boys this afternoon on the football field, go toward the goal for a touchdown. When I see someone coming down the aisle as if he did not care much, it was a question of indifference as to whether he went to heaven or hell, it is a sure sign that that man will stand a good chance to 'backslide.' You must not put anything that's worth while in you and then go into politics, choose some party that you can work for with enthusiasm. If you are going into business, go into something that you love, and if you are going to get married, marry a girl that you can love with all your heart. Put yourself in your business, your politics, your matrimonial affairs, and your religion, with your whole soul. Some people are like Ephraim—they are like a cake half-turned—they are only half-baptized."

"Some workers in gospel meetings—of course there aren't any of this kind in Newark—will go up to a man and say, 'Are you a Christian?' and he will reply, 'Well, I don't know what I am or of what kind of a person, if I would scratch my head, I could get splinters under my fingers.' There is many a man that, if he would just wake up, put his earnestness and enthusiasm into his business, that he is now almost a bankrupt, would be a power in the financial world. There is a great reservoir of intellectual energy in every life that very few people ever use, and what would it mean if every life here were set on fire by the great power of Jesus Christ? What could you do? Salvation is intellect infused with the dynamic of godliness. Christ changed religion from a restraint to a motive. This young man was attractive because he came running."

"Another thing that impresses us about this young man was that he was polite. The Germans have a 'Sprichwort' which says, 'Mit dem Hut in dem Hand geht man durch den ganzen Welt,' or, 'With his hat in his hand, a man can go through the whole world.' In the vernacular of the times, this means that 'politeness pays.' It pays. Some people think it is an evidence of character if they are rough and boorish and vulgar. It is an evidence of weakness. Some people are imitating the faults rather than the force of the great. "This young man knelt to Jesus. If you are to have true courtesy, it must come from within, not something that you can put on and off like your Sunday clothes. Real gentleness and grace is a matter of the heart. "He was a Thoughtful Man. "Again, this young man fascinates us because he was thoughtful. He had been thinking upon the great questions of life. Why is it that so many people would rather go off to look at some half-dressed actress or attend a picture show, or wear out their souls—both kinds—on the ball room floor, or simply waste their time in that most idiotic amusement of card playing? It is because they have little brains and it seems to me that God would have a mighty hard job with a person that will not think. It is hard to make granite out of putty. "If a person thinks, you have hopes for him, but if he is not willing to exercise the gray matter in his brain you have very little hold upon that one to bring him to God. If you could get every person in this town to think for a single hour devoutly and seriously on the great questions of life, you would find it people by the thousands seeking salvation. "Again, we are interested in this young ruler, because he was clean in his private life. There has been a disregard of purity in relation with religion that is not borne out by the scripture or by common sense. Virtue is always better than vice. When Jesus advised this young ruler to keep the commandments, and he enumerated several of them, this young man replied, 'Master, all these have I observed from my youth. But now you are beginning to see why it was that he wasn't a Christian."

"He was ecstasial. He was trusting to himself, to his goodness. Moralism is a good thing as far as it goes, but suppose there is someone in the third story of a building and the building is on fire, and you call for the ladders. The ladders are put up to the second story and will go no higher. The ladders are good. They are good as far as they go, but they don't go far enough. Suppose I go to a bank and want to take up a note of $1000. I pay over $500, but you won't give me the note. Why not, isn't the money good? Yes, it's all right, but there isn't enough of it. Moralism is good as much as there is of it, but there is not one of us that is not a sinner. No one of us by our own righteousness can gain everlasting life. "Give Mothers the Credit. "Why was he boasting of his righteousness? Really, it was due to the training he received in his youth, from his parents. 'All these have I observed from my youth. You have been telling people how much better than your neighbors you were, how Mr. So-and-so did many a thing that you wouldn't even think of doing. Have you ever thought how much of the credit belongs to your mother and that, as God sees it, about 95 per cent of your boasted goodness is due to the training you received? "Now, we are told that Jesus looked upon that young man's earnestness, enthusiasm, politeness, courtesy, cleanliness, and thoughtfulness—and that Jesus loved him. Oh, I wish I could impress upon your minds the meaning of that word—to have the love of Jesus toward you. "After that second day's fight at Gettysburg, when the hospital corps came on the battle field to collect the bodies of the wounded and dead, they found, sitting bolt upright, a dead body, the dead body of a soldier, holding in his hand the faded daguerotype of three little children. All that afternoon, amid the roar of the cannon and the hellish rattle of musketry, that man's life was finding solace for his sorrow in feasting on the faces of his little loves. They scooped out a shallow grave on the battle field and laid away the body of that man to rest, and above the grave they put these words, 'July 2d, 1863—Somebody's Father.' "Get into your mind the highest conception of an earthly father," pleaded Dr. Lyon, "and you have scarcely a glimpse of the wonderful, infinite, eternal love of God as revealed in Jesus."

Wasn't Counting Favor. "And Jesus loved that young man so dearly, so purely, so sincerely that he told him the truth. If he had been merely courting that young ruler's favor and popularity, he might have said, 'You are a good fellow; you have courage, you have earnestness, you have enthusiasm, you have politeness, you have thoughtfulness, you have cleanness in your private life—you are just about right.' That young man would have gone away very much pleased. It takes a great deal of love sometimes to tell the truth. It isn't the best surgeon that tries to heal the wound easily, but he probes to the bottom. So Jesus looked on that young man, loved him, and that love was so sincere that he told him the facts. He diagnosed his case. He said, 'One thing thou lackest—go thy way, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven.' "Well, I imagine the young man said, 'Of course I didn't suppose I was absolutely perfect. If there is only one thing the matter, I am about right. I do not have to have any anxiety.' Yes, but that one thing that you lack is the thing that is an absolute essential. Summoning I said, 'I have a plan by which you can have a million dollars.' You would say, 'Good, good, I can use it right away.' But I would reply, 'There's just one thing—it will cost you your life.' "It would," you would say, 'well, if it will kill me, you could put $100,000,000 there and I wouldn't touch it.' "Why? Because life is an absolute fundamental and essential. You do not need to knock the whole bottom out of a ship to sink the ship. One hole is enough. Not every link in a chain has to be broken to make it just one link enough. You do not need to tear up a mile of railroad track to ditch a train; just one rail out of place is enough. "So it is with every life. The battle is not deciding all along the line. Every life has some Port Arthur, some great central stronghold or citadel where the final issue is going to be decided. With this young man his love was centered upon his wealth. Now Christ, in diagnosing our spiritual diseases, always puts his finger on the sore spot. With him it was avarice. "Don't Be a Liar. "With you it may be lust. There may be someone here that is untrue to his wife. That is the thing that has been keeping you from God. Or perhaps some wife has been untrue to her husband. A wife like that came to a meeting the other night and a worker said, 'Are you a Christian?' 'Oh, yes, sure I'm a Christian,' she replied. She was an adulteress. There are a good many liars in this world and some of them get into a gospel meeting. "It may be that you are egotistical—that you are centered in self. It may be pride, it may be stubbornness, it may be there is some putting pleasure that you are putting ahead of God and everlasting life. We will with every life there is some decided issue where the battle is to be fought, won or lost. "Now, as President Harner of Chicago University used to say, bring out about this young ruler—that, undoubtedly, if he had said, 'Lord I believe in Thee,' God would have been merciful to him. "What is it to believe in Christ? It is to believe that Christ's plan of life is a good deal better for you than anything you can plan for yourself. If you really believe that, you will accept and you will obey him. Just as you saw with Abraham and Isaac, when Abraham was willing to give up his son, he offered him as a sacrifice, but God stopped his hand. If this rich man had said, 'Lord, I will obey thee,' and had started to give up his property, undoubtedly before the property was half gone God would have stayed his hand and said, 'That is enough. You have showed your earnestness and willingness.' Christ did that with Zacchaeus. When Zacchaeus promised to restore four fold for aught that he had wrongfully taken, Christ said to him, 'This very day, salvation is come to this house.' "Then there came the struggle in the heart of this rich young man. Can you not see him, as he paces back and forth, fighting the battle. The greatest battles of this world have not been fought on the bloody battle fields. They have been fought in the arena of the human soul between right and wrong, between desire and duty, between the flesh and spirit, between Satan and Christ's between hell and heaven. There is a battle going on in many a soul here tonight. Oh, how Jesus loved that young man. How he would like to have given that young man a victory, but he would not violate that young man's will. He had that solemn faculty of choice and decision. He had to settle that matter for himself. "One thing thou lackest. Metalurgists tell us that copper started out on the process of becoming gold, but somewhere on the course they say it was shunted off and the process was not completed. The Germans have a motto that 'What is not finished is nothing.' One thing thou lackest,' says our text tonight—'but what can you confess publicly your belief in Jesus and that you are saved. "Have to Say 'Yes.' "There is some one here that has said, 'Well, I will not come to the front. That's one thing I will not do. I will go to hell first.' God can save you on the back seat or on the streets, he can save you in your place of business or home but listen—if there is something to which you are saying 'no' to God, in that very thing you will have to say 'Yes.' You have said 'Yes' to your arms of rebellion. You cannot make terms with Jesus Christ. Whatever it is that's the lack that has to be supplied. "At the Philadelphia Centennial in 1876," continued the evangelist, "a great Corliss engine that was running all the machinery stopped. The machinists could not find anything wrong with it. They called their best men to examine it, but still it would not go. At last they sent for an expert from New York, who came and examined it, and discovered that a very tiny screw had become loose and dropped from its place and thrown all the machinery out of gear. You know what it is in your life that has been keeping you away from Jesus Christ, and the Son of God is saying to many a soul tonight just what he said to that rich young ruler—'One thing thou lackest.' "If that young ruler had said, 'Lord I'll do anything that thou sayest, I believe in Thee. Your plan for me is better than anything I can plan for myself,' what would have been the result? That young man, with his enthusiasm, intellectual power, financial ability, courtesy, cleanliness, etc., would have been one of the brightest lights shining out of the darkness of that first century to be a great power in the lifting of souls to God. "Meet the Issue Squarely. "That was the spirit of Paul, that other young man, when on the Damascus road he saw what he would have to do, and in Paul's old age he could say, 'I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course; I kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown.' But when this young ruler came face to face with the issue—as you have tonight—do you mean to do anything you have to either accept or reject, you have to accept Christ or to deny him—we are told that the young man went away. "I have read somewhere of a man that had considerable wealth and invested almost all of it in a beautiful pearl of fabulous value," related Dr. Lyon, as he told the story of this man's decision to spend the remaining years of his life abroad. Going across the ocean, he purchased some apples and amused passengers on the deck by the deft manner in which he juggled them, one, two, three, four, five and six at a time, and was encouraged by their applause to do something even more daring and went to his state-room to get the priceless pearl. He then threw this as far as he could, with almost superhuman strength, above his head, catching it as it came down. Passengers begged of him not to chance losing the jewel, but the applause of the few had turned his head, and he repeated the feat over and over again. Finally, however, the ship lurched and the jewel fell into the sea. "The man stood for a moment and gazed into the sea, and then he turned and said to a sailor, 'Fool that I was, to lose all my wealth merely for a few moments enjoyment of applause,' continued the speaker."

"There are those in this building who are allowing some sensual pleasure, some questionable amusement, some desire of the eye or the flesh, to keep you away from God, and from heaven. 'One thing thou lackest...' and he went away."

"Dante in his vision of hell, tells of one that he was who was suffering the keenest torment of the damned. He said it was the one who made the great refusal."

Don't Continue to Reject. "In a series of meetings in another state, there came into the service night after night, a prominent Christian, a very able man, of fine parts and feeling, who listened more attentively than he to the message, but he would reject Christ each night. The closing Sunday of the campaign, as I was going to the morning service, I met this physician, with his medicine case, going out upon a case. He greeted me cordially and thanked me for the messages I had given him. "I said, 'Are you a Christian, doctor?' He said 'No.' "I said, 'Something tells me, doctor, that unless you are saved before these meetings are over, you will never be saved.' "I never will be saved. I am as sure of hell as if I were already suffering the doom of the lost," was his answer. Just then the last bell for the morning service began to ring, and he said, 'Mr. Lyon, I listen to tell my funeral knell. Nine years ago, when I began to practice medicine, there was a series of meetings like these held in this town. I knew I ought to be a Christian. I knew it was the right and reasonable course to take. I was a coward. The meetings closed with me rejecting Christ, and the spirit of God left me. My heart ever since has been just as hard and cold and dead as a stone. I enjoy your sermons merely from an intellectual standpoint, but I have absolutely no desire for the Christian life. I am lost. It is too late. "I tell you, said that man, 'it is no use. It is too late.' The last I ever saw of that man, he picked up his medicine case and started down the street, and I heard him murmur, 'Lost, lost, lost. It's too late.' He went away."

"So it was with this one who made the great refusal. He went away from hope, he went away from influence, he went away from joy, he went away from happiness, he went away from home, he went away from Jesus. And we never heard of this young man again."

Joe Hooker's Contraction. The evangelist contrasted this condition with the conversion of a man in a meeting in Hempstead, L. I. This man promised the pastor of a church that if the choir would sing "In the Ocean," he would come to hear it. The song was sung by the choir, and at the close of the meeting the pastor felt impelled to give an invitation for those who wished to accept Christ. The first to come down the aisle was the man who had made the unusual request. Said the pastor to the soldierly looking man, 'What is your name?' and the soldier answered, "Joseph Hooker."

"It was none other than Joseph H. Hooker, 'Fighting Joe,' the hero of Lookout Mountain," related the evangelist. He was invited to a testimonial meeting to be held the following Wednesday night, and promised, with God's help, that he would be there to give a testimony. "On that Tuesday, evening though," continued Dr. Lyon, "as the family was gathered about the supper table, the service of that famous general dropped heavily to his breast. He gasped once or twice and expired. He had heard the last call, but praise God, he had heeded it." "Friends, perhaps tonight is the last call for some soul in this building. Tonight you are either going from Christ or toward him. God grant that this may be the night that you will say, 'I will accept Jesus Christ as my Lord and my Savior.' How many will do it?"

The after meeting proved to be one of the most earnest in the history of the campaign; never was such a splendid spirit of carrying the gospel message ever manifested before. Men and women who during the campaign have found a great satisfaction in their service as the Master joined in their efforts to bring their friends to Christ, and their pleadings are not without avail. The supreme earnestness of the evangelist and his workers, and the undeniable truth of the gospel of Jesus Christ were so closely interwoven that their effect was intensified a hundred fold. Several of the students from Denison University were among those who accepted Christ as their personal Lord and Saviour, and their influence in the Baptist school is sure to prove one of the great victories of the Newark campaign. The Heisey delegation gave a number of converts, and the record of the evening, while from all parts of the building, came the usual quota of repentant sinners, anxious to find in the mercy of Christ their salvation from the sins of the world. Sixty-five cards were recorded before the meeting closed.

HOW TO AVOID EXTRA SESSION

One of the Chief Concerns of Congressmen.

THE HOUSE IS TOO SMALL

No Room to Accommodate the Increased Membership if an Extra Session is Called—Discussion as to Whether Republican Factions Will Get Together by 1916.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.
Washington, Nov. 4. — [Special.]—How to avoid an extra session of congress has become the chief concern of the men who compose that congress and all others interested. No one wants an extra session who is on the payroll. The members of the senate and house, the employees and all the clerks, draw their money whether congress is in session or in recess. Consequently the great effort in the short session of congress is to prevent an extra session after the expiration of the regular term on March 4.

This can be accomplished if there is general acquiescence on the part of everybody—no attempt to put too much legislation in the appropriation bills, by postponing until the future all delicate and disputed questions. In that way the supply bills can be passed and the extra session avoided.

Business is Willing.
Business is willing that congress shall take the long recess from March 4 until December. Business generally feels that it is much safer if congress is not in session. It was from the big business center that word went forth that Governor Wilson if elected president would not call an extra session of congress.

But there is an element which may not agree with business. This reform element which has been making a very large noise, demanding much national legislation, promising a great deal and claiming to have the ear of the country, may demand that there shall be an extra session of congress next spring. Any considerable number of persons in congress can join hands and force enough appropriation bills over to compel an extra session.

There will be a great deal of discussion from this time forward as to whether the factions of the Republican party will be able to get together in time for another election. Twenty years ago, when the Republicans suffered a severe defeat, there was no such wide divisions in the ranks as at present. It is true that the silver question divided them, but it did not make boiling factions. But they united on the tariff and money and won a series of victories remarkable in their number.

But there is intense and bitter feeling between the old line standpatters and the faction known as bull moosers. In fact, the contest between these factions has been more bitter than that between Republicans and Democrats. If these factions cannot get together it will complicate political conditions in the future.

A Hidden Memorial.
One naturally supposes that a tablet commemorating some important event would be erected where it could be seen, but such is not the case regarding one in the interior department. On the top story of that building, far from the line of office travel even, is a stone tablet recounting that the building was burned in 1877 and rebuilt a few years later, giving the names of the architects and builders and stating that Carl Schurz was secretary at the time. It seems a curious place to put the tablet.

House Too Small.
The members of congress who enlarged the house of representatives to the unwieldy number of 435 have to face the problem of how to seat that number. If an extra session is called a lot of members will be compelled to crowd into back corners with such seats as they can obtain, for there is no room in the present arrangement of the hall to accommodate the increased membership.

Coming Back to Town.
Senators and representatives who have been away hustling in the election ever since the regular session of congress adjourned are expected to come straggling in from now until the session opens. Many of the southern men did not go home to vote and came to Washington after the campaign closed, where their families have been since the school year opened. There is quite a lot of department work for all members of congress, and they generally take advantage of the few weeks between the election and Dec. 1 to clear it up.

Garden Seeds.
Opposition to the free distribution of garden seeds did not provoke as much fun in the debate in the house this year as usual. Congressman Candler's speech on this subject seemed to lack the interest which the Mississippian put in it in the past. Only one real bright remark was made. Congressman Martin of South Dakota said that a constituent, acknowledging the receipt of the last batch of seeds, wrote him, "I have placed those seeds where they will do you the least harm."

The precise weight of an English ounce was fixed by Henry III.

ATTENTION, MR. VOTER!

On account of the extraordinary size of the ballot to be cast at the election next Tuesday and the multiplicity of candidates, the voter should carefully study the various tickets before he enters the booth and should decide as early as possible whom he wishes to support.

Secretary of State Graves has ruled that the voter may take a fac-simile or sample ballot into the booth with him for his guidance in marking the ballot. This sample or fac-simile must be destroyed or removed from the booth when the voter leaves.

There are many ways in which a ballot may be marked legally. For instance, a voter may vote a "straight ticket" by placing a cross mark (X) in the circle at the head of a ticket of a party.

THERE IS ONLY ONE SAFE WAY TO VOTE A "MIXED TICKET."

Here it is: To be absolutely safe, and to insure his ballot being counted the voter should place a cross mark (X) before the name of every candidate he wishes to support, including each and every one of the Presidential electors.

And, above all things, don't get tired and fail to vote for all the candidates you wish to support! This is the most important duty the voter has to perform.

Social Reform Leaders

By CHARLES STELZLE

WHAT is the church doing in the matter of social reform? The Socialists scorn its claims that it is rendering real service in this connection. It is true that the church is not a social reform agency in the sense that it makes this its chief function, but even a cursory study of the situation must convince the open minded student that the church is an important factor in social service. It gives to every man the right to accept whatever economic theory he desires so long as its application does no violence to the rights of others and so long as it is in accord with fundamental moral principles. But the church has a positive position and work in this matter. It has undertaken important studies of social conditions throughout the country which easily match the efforts of professional social workers. It has come out in pronouncements upon certain economic conditions which might well have been sent forth by the workers themselves. They could not have been more emphatic and concrete. But perhaps the chief function of the church in these matters is that of supplying the men and the women who are the leaders in social reform affairs. The study of over a thousand professional social workers as to church affiliation, as indicated on the accompanying chart, shows that of those who were associated charity workers 92 per cent were church members. Similar facts with regard to other groups are also shown. As a matter of fact, the church practically controls through its membership nearly every great philanthropic movement of any consequence. Glance at the list of directors and verify this statement. Practically all of the money that goes into hospitals, orphan asylums, clubs and charitable institutions of various kinds comes from church people. Without them these could not exist. Recognizing that there is a great work to be done in the matter of social reform which must reach down to fundamental things, let it not be forgotten that the wounded in life's battle must meanwhile be cared for. To these the church ministers freely. At the same time it is developing most of those who will fight for the bigger things in social reform.

ON SECOND THOUGHT.

There is some talk of the improved mince pie, recently invented. To be better than the old one, the improved mince pie must be able either to tell a story or to sing a song.

A good many men manage to keep their names before the public without observing the formality of first securing a pretext.

Mrs. F. Augustus Heinz says her husband never treated her like a wife. So many women do not know when they are well off.

The flaw in Dr. West's suggestion that every boy set aside the earnings of one cow as a protection against old age is that there are not enough cows to go round.

However, Eph Wiley says he is willing to give his cow up to some one more deeply interested in the experiment.

Every fond father should remember that the acid test of his wonderful child is its ability to make a living after it grows up.

APOTHEOSIS OF THE "BARBER SHOP CHORD"

It is still warm enough for young fellows to parade the midnight streets, singing as they walk. If you listen to their songs—and you must for they are always vociferous. If not strident—you will notice that the turn of the melody is often interrupted by a strange, almost unseasonably, harmony, as much out of place in the current of the song as a dam in a river. It leads away from the tune and then, strangely enough, leads back.

This is called "the barber-shop chord." It doesn't come, however, from the shops of the white barbers—cold and formal places—but from the tonorial palaces of the colored man—warm, fragrant and emotional—where the dusky barbers, in the grateful leisure between hair-cuts and shaves, strum banjos and guitars and break out into concerted song.

No white man could have invented this "barber shop chord." For the matter of that, although the white race is quickly assimilative, no white tenor has been found who could wander afield from the melody in this way and then slide back to it as do the negroes who invented and adorn it.

If the colored race could put its music between bars it would furnish the world with a new and delightful music. Save, however, in the case of the late Coleridge Taylor, who was only half African in blood, and so wrote more like a Caucasian than the other half of him. There has been no cultured negro composer.

Bob Cole and Rosamond Johnson, both with a fair schooling in music, were wise enough to keep to their own tunes and rhythms and harmonies. And the unpretentious melodies they turned out brought success and money to them and good fortune to many a musical comedy.

What they never succeeded in doing has been done. It is said, by John Berry, a negro brushboy in a barber shop at Frankfort, Ind. He used to sing as he worked, and both the words and tunes would be his own. An observant traveling man advised him to publish his songs. Berry did more than this. He wrote a comic opera, lock, stock and barrel, words lyrics and music. A Chicago manager got hold of it and gave him $3000 advance royalties on account of its taking melodies. The "barber-shop chord" has now reached the stage in a direct way. From Composer to Consumer, as the "ads" would put it.

THE SALVATION ARMY REVIVAL BEGINS NOV. 6

The revival campaign that will start in Newark November 6, under the auspices of the Salvation Army, will date one of the most thorough-going efforts that the Salvation Army has ever made in the city of Newark for the purpose of reorganizing the work.

Capt. T. A. McMahon, in Charge of the Local Salvation Army.

of the Army from every standpoint, and this concentrated effort and gathering together of the Salvation Army workers from all over the state is for the poor possible.

It is expected that on Wednesday night a brass band of ten pieces and a number of the army's best singers and speakers will be present at the opening service on November 6. Captain Thos. McMahon, who is in charge of Newark, is one of the Army's sweetest singers and one of the features of his singing is the fact that many of his songs have been composed by himself. He is one of the Army's poets, and hymn writers and is also an evangelist.

Capt. Jas. R. Slayton, the evangelist coming to help, is a converted gambler and at one time traveled on the road as a commercial salesman, and has had a wide experience. He was converted under General William Booth in Cleveland in 1903. Captain Slayton has for seven years served as a Salvation Army officer or evangelist, and has been successful in carrying on several campaigns this year with a total attendance of over 40,000 people and some two hundred professed conversions.

A new treat is in store for the city of Newark and it is expected that many will be converted and called to work in the Army for the spiritual uplift of those who are lost. Everybody is heartily invited to these services, commencing November 6 and to continue until November 21.

Meetings will be held nightly at the old M. E. church, corner Church and Fourth streets.

CAPT. J. R. SLAYTON, Converted Gambler.

DON'T PULL OUT THE GRAY HAIR

A Few Applications of a Simple Remedy Will Bring Back the Natural Color.

"Pull out one gray hair and a dozen will take its place" is an old saying, which is, to a great extent, true, if no steps are taken to stop the cause. When gray hairs appear it is a sign that Nature needs assistance. It is nature's call for help. Gray hair, dull, lifeless hair, or hair that is falling out, is not necessarily a sign of advancing age, for there are thousands of elderly people with perfect heads of hair without a single streak of gray.

When gray hair comes, or when the hair seems to be lifeless or dead, some good, reliable hair-restoring treatment should be resorted to at once. Specialists say that one of the best preparations to use is the old-fashioned "sage tea" which our grandparents used. The best preparation of this kind is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of domestic sage and sulphur, scientifically compounded with later discovered hair tonics and stimulants, the whole mixture being carefully balanced and tested by experts.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is clean and wholesome and perfectly harmless. It refreshes dry, parched hair, removes dandruff, and gradually restores faded or gray hair to its natural color.

Don't delay another minute. Start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur at once and see what a difference a few days' treatment will make in your hair.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Agent, Hall's Drug Store, 10 North Side Square.

"COOKEY" JONES HAS PURCHASED THE TABERNACLE

Mayor O. C. "Cookey" Jones, of Buckeye Lake, is now the owner of the Lion tabernacle, having completed the purchase of the big structure from the campaign committee today. In a statement to an Advocate representative this morning the mayor declared that he had not decided what he would do with the building. He has several tentative plans, and in the event these are not carried to completion, he will probably move the building to Buckeye Lake for Auditorium purposes.
Mayor Jones is going to let the people of Newark have at least one more opportunity of visiting the building which has been the scene of strenuous spiritual activities for the past six weeks. He has arranged a little "party" for tomorrow night, to which he invites every man, woman and child in Newark, regardless of color, church affiliation or political faith. There is going to be a lot of singing, he promises, and election reports from all over the country will be read to the audience.
Mr. Jones' bid was the highest tendered to the building committee for the purchase of the tabernacle.

QUARTERLY REPORT OF HUMANE SOCIETY

The Humane Society has a membership of one hundred and fifty-three paid-up and active members. During the month of August 33 cases of cruelty to children and animals were received by the humane officer, J. P. Harris, all of which were given careful attention. 11 cases being adjusted out of court, one dog being relieved of his suffering by being shot, both feet having been cut off by the cars.
In September, 54 cases of cruelty were received. There was one arrest and conviction for keeping three dogs confined in a filthy tight place, without pure water and proper feeding, pups up to the ages of one to five years, never seeing out of the place.
One dog was relieved of his suffering by being shot, the animal being run over purposely by an automobile. The driver was arrested and bound over to the grand jury.
One cat was relieved of its suffering by shooting, its leg being cut off by a street car.
Three men were arrested for abusing a horse on East Main street. One of the men was dismissed, the other two being bound over to the grand jury.
Four men were arrested for cruelty to animals on the Rocky Fork pike, and were bound over to the probate court.
The remaining 45 cases were settled peacefully by the officer, and full warnings given for future guidance.
In October, 14 cases were reported. One was made near Alexandria for cruelty to a cow. The case was taken to the Probate court. One case was made for cruelty to a ram, north of Montgomery Crossing, east of town. The man is under arrest, but owing to a disability is unable as yet to come to court.
Twelve cases were warned and a reasonable settlement was made. Total cases involved, 161.
There are many other acts of cruelty that we see. With winter soon upon us, we need more blankets, more stable service, more feed, and driving of horses than ever. Other animals must be cared for. Neglected children will be or and penalty meted out to them.
J. P. HARRIS, 210 East Main street.
